FEDERAL COURT ORDERS STANDARD OIL DISSOLUTION

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 20.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was ordered dissolved in a decision handed down to-day by the United States Circuit Court in the government's suit against the corporation. The order of the court becomes operative within thirty days.

The decision, which was read by Judge Elmer B. Adams, was a sweeping one, the government being sustained in almost every one of its contentions. The only exceptions made were in favor of some minor subsidiary companies which the court held were not clearly shown to be dominated by the trust.

The opinion was written by Judge W. H. Reshorn of St. Paul, Minn., and was concurred in by Judge Lewis Vandeventer of Cheyenne, Wyo., Judge William C. Hook of Leavenworth, Kan., and Judge Elmer B. Adams of St. Louis.

Judge W. C. Hook wrote a separate opinion concurring in the general finding, but taking a much more pronounced view of some points against the company. The case will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court. The majority opinion part was as follows:

"Conspired to Monopolize."

"That the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the individual defendants and several subsidiary companies engaged in commerce in petroleum or its products among the States or with foreign nations, controlled by the principal company, have entered into by their operations a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the several States such as is denounced as illegal by Section 1 of the anti-trust acts of July 2, 1890, and have combined and conspired to monopolize and secure therefor an unlawful monopoly of and are combining to continue to monopolize a substantial part of the interstate and international commerce in violation of Section 2 of that act.

"That the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey be enjoined from voting the stock in any of these defendant companies which it acquired by virtue of that combination and from exercising and from being allowed to exercise any control, direction, supervision or influence over the acts of any of these companies by virtue of holding stock and powers secured through that combination."

Dividends Enjoined.

The other defendant companies that are parties to the combination are enjoined from declaring or paying any dividends to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey on account of stock acquired by it through that combination, or permitting that committee to vote said stock.

The suit was filed in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis, November 15, 1906, at the instance of William H. Moody, then Attorney-General of the United States, in petitioning for the dissolution of the New Jersey corporation and its subsidiaries the government complained that the defendants had conspired to restrain the trade and commerce in petroleum commonly called crude oil, in refined oil and in the other products of petroleum among the several States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia and with foreign nations and to monopolize the said commerce, or permitting that combination to vote said stock or to direct policies of said companies or to exercise any control whatsoever over their corporate offices by virtue of the stock or power which it secured by means of that combination.

DECISION BRINGS SHARES ON CURB; TRUST TO APPEAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Twenty-five shares of Standard Oil stock, four or five times as much as usually comes out, were dealt in on the curb market to-day following the announcement that the government had won in the suit of the State of Missouri to dissolve the Standard Oil Company. Sales were made at 700 to 701, while the old and naked quotations were reported as 695 to 700. The stock closed last night at 703½.

Beyond asserting that an appeal would be taken, representatives of the oil company declined to make any comment on the decision against that corporation. M. F. Elliott, general solicitor of the company, said that he would wait for further details concerning the scope of the decision before making any comments on it or outlining the policy which the company would pursue.

No attempt is made by representatives of the corporation to belittle the significance of the Circuit Court's ruling, which, if upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States, is recognized as one likely to be fraught with far-reaching consequences both the Government and the corporation. It is understood, decided long ago that in whatever way the case went in the United States Circuit Court, an appeal would be taken to the highest legal tribunal in order to definitely settle the questions involved.

CATCH THIEF AFTER CHASE FROM HOTEL

A thief at the Hotel Brewster caught robbing guests escaped from the grasp of his victim and two bell boys to-day, fled from the hotel and was recaptured in the Boylston Cafe, where he became entangled among the dining tables. He had stolen $120 from a guest who registered at the hotel on his way to the football game.

When the thief was finally captured he was taken to the Lagrange street police station. He gave his name as William Marshall, forty-three years, and his address as Chicago. A man of that name has a police record of twenty-two years' standing in Western cities.

The victim was awakened by a noise in his room. He saw Marshall going through his pockets. He grappled with the man and, assisted by two bellboys, took him to the office.

In the office Marshall broke from his captors and fled to the street. Followed by throngs of guests and others he started up Boylston street, crossed over, doubled on his tracks and ducked into the entrance of the Boylston Cafe. His pursuers followed. Jostling among the tables and diners in the cafe, Marshall eluded his pursuers for a short time, but finally tripped over a chair and was caught. He was again taken to the hotel office and Patrolman Murphy arrested him.

ARCHBISHOP NAMES REV. FR. M'CARTHY

Archbishop O'Connell has appointed the Rev. James J. McCarthy of the Cathedral clergy to the newly created parish of St. William in the Savin Hill district of Dorchester. The archbishop had previously appointed the Rev. James J. Baxter, D. D., as pastor, but Dr. Baxter's health was not equal to the task of organizing a new parish.

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Nov. 20.—When the great Harvard-Yale gridiron battle began at 2 o'clock this afternoon the immense stadium was packed by a red and blue host of 40,000 frenzied enthusiasts.

As early as 12:30 thousands of eager partisans were swarming about the entrances of the big horseshoe. All the avenues to the scene of battle were choked with the hordes of Harvard and of Yale, all supremely confident.

The vast procession of automobiles had already begun to appear and the air reeked of gasoline as the vanguard of motor cars chug-chugged into the fields by the roads reserved for them. Trolley cars, jammed to the last inch, deposited passengers in constant procession at Harvard square and in Western avenue, the crowd swarming from them like so many bees.

Heavy Police Guard.

The highways about the Stadium were under heavy police guard, mounted officers keeping a large area clear near the huge pile of concrete, while others kept the crowd moving in from the three avenues of approach. All told, 450 Bluecoats preserved order. These streets swarmed with men and youths selling blue and crimson flags and megaphones.

The crowds come from all over the United States. Many of the visitors had been in Boston for from a day to a week. The hotels had been packed and late comers last night had been unable to get rooms.

All of the railroads brought in crowded special trains to-day. Five trains of twen-

SLAYER OF BADGER QUEEN A SUICIDE

SING SING, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Charles J. Arthur, who was serving a life term in Sing Sing for the murder of Goldie Moran, "the Badger queen," killed himself in his cell to-day by strangling himself.

5 CHILDREN STARVING IN LONELY HOME

Agent William C. Chichester of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children told Judge Fallon to-day in the South Boston court a pitiful story of how he had found five little children, ranging in age from two to ten years, famished and in tatters in the basement of No. 76 Preble street on November 5. He charged James H. Kennedy, their father, with non-support.

Mrs. Kenney, the wife and mother, is serving at Deer Island a sentence for drunkenness. Before she was taken to prison she had, it is said, sold all the furniture in her home for money to buy drink. Judge Fallon sentenced Kennedy to three months imprisonment in the House of Correction.

The case appealed and was held in $300. The Kennedy children are now in the Harrison avenue Home for Destitute Catholic Children. According to court testimony the little ones were dependent upon the charity of neighbors when the society's agent found them.

FISHER LOSES DORIES.

LIVERPOOL, N. S., Nov. 20.—The Gloucester schooner Arkona, Captain Wharton, has arrived here and reports having had her decks swept during the recent gale on the Grand Banks. The vessel lost twelve dories and thirteen barrels of oil.

Cough Weather

When the weather is cold and stormy, most of us are more or less subject to the unpleasant experiences of colds, with the consequent wearing strain of the cough and the danger of more serious trouble if not properly looked after.

People who practice deep breathing and who use ordinary care to avoid sudden changes of temperature, dampness and exposure, are less liable to take cold than those of less methodical habits. At the first sign of a cold steps should be taken to check it. A simple, inexpensive and effective remedy is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. It is claimed by the Leach Chemical Co., of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing through druggists, that a teaspoonful of this mixture four times a day will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

STEAMERS IN VAIN HUNT FOR ASTOR YACHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Another day without news from Colonel John Jacob Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal, added to the anxieties of his relatives and friends for the safety of her owner and his son and party on board the steam yacht onboard from Jamaica since they sailed from Kingston, Jamaica, on November 5 into West Indian waters that soon afterward were swept by terrific hurricanes.

There was still to-day no cable communication with Porto Rico or other West Indian ports for which Colonel Astor might have set sail, and the fact that he might be with his yacht in some safe harbor, cut off from the possibility of quick communication because of interruption of cable service, was the hope which encouraged those engaged in the search for the missing vessel.

Every possible resource is being called into play in the effort to obtain tidings of the Nourmahal. Numerous steamers in West Indian waters are on the lookout for her, wireless stations at all available points are ready at a moment's notice to transmit any bit of news that may be picked up and special search is being conducted by government vessels.

The island of Barbados was to-day added to the places where it was thought the Nourmahal might be found. A letter from A. Young, electrician on board, sent from Kingston on November 5, and received by his father in this city, indicated that Colonel Astor intended to sail either for Porto Rico or Barbados.

William Dobbyn, Colonel Astor's secretary, sent to-day that Barbados was a point well worth watching, as it was his impression that Colonel Astor intended to visit Barbados while in the West Indies.

An indefinite report at hand to-day from Wallings island, by way of Santiago de Cuba, indicated that the Nourmahal might have been there since she left Kingston.

SECRETARY MEYER HERE FOR BIG GAME

Secretary Meyer of the navy department reached Boston early to-day to attend the Harvard-Yale football game. He will return to Washington Sunday night.

The secretary is said to be a firm believer in the value of football as a developer of character and to favor its continuation after a modification is made in the rules. One of the greatest dangers of the game as played to-day, according to his reported attitude toward the game, is when players being permitted to remain in the game after becoming exhausted.

BOSTON-BOUND BARK IN MISHAP

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The Norwegian steamer Diana, Captain Sarson, which sailed for Norfolk, returned here for repairs to-day, following a collision with the American bark Boylston, from Norfolk for Boston, last night off Barnegat. She sustained damages to the port afterrail and dented in some plates. The bark was damaged on the starboard bow. The Boylston put into Norfolk for new sails.

DUCKERY TO STAY IN RACE FOR MAYOR

The Boston mayoralty race to-day became more complex when J. Henry Duckery, colored clergyman, issued a statement that he is "in the race till the flag falls." Mr. Duckery says that many people have refused to consider his candidacy or else have made fun of it. He promises that they'll change their minds about his candidacy before the fight is over.

Professional forecasters who weren't busy "working" the result of the Harvard-Yale game to-day condescended to give a few tips on the mayoralty result. A few small bets were made, with Fitzgerald a slight favorite. A straw vote taken among the political wiseacres who congregate in the rear of City Hall was declared void because although only twenty-one persons voted, thirty-four ballots were cast.

Lull at Headquarters.

The principal activities in the mayoralty race to-day were in the line of talk. The hustle for signatures was at an low level today. The Storrow campaign headquarters in the Kimball building were not as lively to-day as they will be on Monday next. The Storrow managers plan to begin their whirlwind work next week.

There was a good deal of guessing to-day as to whom former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald's Republic referred to in a pointed paragraph to-day in which he said one member of the Storrow campaign committee was cause he was compelled to pay a poll tax while Fitzgerald was exempt from paying it because they were turned down in their quest for jobs.

Stories are beginning to leak out that the deliberations of the Committee of Nine chosen to pick a mayoralty candidate for the Committee of One, Hundred and Fifty were not as tame affairs as has been rumored. George Bates, it is said, was not for Storrow first, last and all the time.

Quit Committee of 150.

Francis M. Carroll, a lawyer, living in Ward 26, and Thomas H. Reuben, both listed as members of the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty, have divorced themselves from that body.

What attitude will James Donovan, president of the Democratic City Committee, assume in the mayoralty campaign?

This is the big question before politicians throughout the city to-day. Some say Donovan will support Storrow, others say he will support neither Storrow nor Fitzgerald, and others say he will advocate the election of Fitzgerald. Meantime, "Jim" is not talking for publication; in fact he is remaining about as quiet about the mayoralty situation as the proverbial oyster.

Famous Hope Diamond Didn't Sink in the Sea.

PARIS—The famous Hope diamond did not go down in the wreck of the Seyne at Singapore. It has been located here in the possession of a jeweler named Rosenau, of No. 9 Rue Chauchat. It seems that the jewel was offered for sale by Selim Habib last June, but was withdrawn. Subsequently it was bought by Rosenau, who confessed rather ruefully to-day that it was still in his possession.

Warning from Suffragettes.

LONDON—The Conservatives have received a warning to expect the attentions of the militant suffragettes if they oust the Liberals in a general election. Mrs. Lawrence, a prominent suffragette leader, in a speech at Nottingham said that what the Liberals had experienced at the hands of the suffragettes would be as nothing in comparison with what the Conservatives would have to undergo if they came into power.

No Duty on Raw Cotton.

LONDON—Replying to a question by a correspondent at Manchester, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, former Prime Minister and Unionist leader, says that a tax on raw cotton could never be contemplated as even remotely possible. Such a tax, he said in his letter, would violate the fundamental principles of fiscal reform.

Won't Stop at Queenstown.

LONDON—It is officially announced by the Cunard Company here that after January 1 and during the remainder of the Winter season their mail steamers leaving New York on Wednesdays will sail direct from that port to Fishguard, omitting the call at Queenstown.

W. S. Cameron Injured.

LONDON—W. Scott Cameron of New York was injured in a hunting accident at Lesmington. Mr. Cameron, who was staying at the Spa, was thrown when his horse stumbled and his right leg was broken.

THIRTY MORE BODIES TAKEN FROM MINE

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 20.—The firemen and miners employed in the work of bringing bodies from the St. Paul mine struck at 4 p. m. to-day after announcing that it was impossible to continue work without oxygen helmets. The bodies then being brought to the surface were in a terrible condition and the work was almost beyond human endurance.

Volunteers were immediately called for and a score of men, relatives of miners entombed in the mine, rallied to the support of the Chicago fire company under the command of Captain Connery. No. 60, who stuck to it with his men.

The charred bodies of thirty men were recovered when work was resumed. Thirty-six bodies were placed one on top of each other at the end of a blind gallery in the second vein. Hundreds of men and women tried to identify the remains but failed. The southwest drift was explored by most of the recovery crew and through the smoke could be discerned a vast heap of dead men lying about among dead mules and the wreckage of cars.

When the heap of debris which walled in a large portion of the west gallery was cleared away the bodies of ten men lay all in a row, their faces buried in their arms. It was evident that escape had been cut off by the approaching flames and the falling timbers had entombed them within the rift.

SATOLLI URGES NEW AMERICAN CARDINAL

ROME, Nov. 20.—A conference which is believed to have a bearing on the probable creation of more American cardinals was held to-day by Pope Pius and Cardinal Satolli, formerly papal delegate to Washington. Cardinal Satolli has long advocated a larger representation for the United States in the Sacred College. Cardinal Satolli believes that the West and Middle West of the United States should be given one or more cardinals. The cardinal is recovering from an attack of nephritis.

WIFE IS DESERTED; ASKS FOR DIVORCE

On the ground that her husband deserted her ten weeks after their marriage, Mrs. Helen Agnes Mansfield of Braintree to-day filed a libel for divorce against James H. Mansfield in the Superior Court at Dedham. She resumes the right to prenuptial her maiden name, Helen Agnes Cuff. The Mansfields were married on May 10, 1905.

BURNS CAUSE DEATH OF JAP GIRL STUDENT

Miss Hiuna Kato, who came here from Tokyo, Japan, to study dramatic art from the American standpoint, died early to-day at the City Hospital from burns sustained through the bursting of a lamp in her room at the Hoffman House, on Columbus avenue.

The lamp which exploded was charged with alcohol, and over it Miss Kato was heating a flatiron. She screamed for help, but her door was locked, and it resisted efforts to break it down until the janitor thought of another entrance to the room. He found the young woman surrounded by flames, which he extinguished with a rug.

Miss Kato was an instructor in the dramatic school attached to the Imperial Theatre at Tokyo. She has been a student in a local school of expression since September last.

IRVING B. SAYLES DEAD.

POLICE CONCEAL FORCED ARRESTS IN WATCH AND WARD SOCIETY CRUSADE

Apparently with the intent of minimizing the work of the Watch and Ward Society in its crusade against the cocaine sellers, the police have refrained from entering on their bulletin at headquarters arrests for that offense made on warrants issued at the instance of the society. Of ten cocaine arrests made during the past two weeks, only two have been given bulletin publicity. Information as to the others has become public in the court rooms.

Since the crusade against cocaine was instituted twenty-one arrests have been caused by the society, and in each instance the accused has been found guilty and adequately punished. The majority of the offenders have been sent to the House of Correction as well as fined.

From court lists the names of men and women selling cocaine on Boston's thoroughfares, with the dates of arrest, are as follows: November 6—George Clark, thirty-five years of age, arrested on Tyler street and sentenced to four months in the House of Correction; more two counts; November 9—Mrs. Lena Barker of No. 11A Norwich street, sentenced to six months and appealed; William Hendricks, alias James Riley, arrested on Shawmut avenue, fined $20, which he could not pay; November 10—Sherman Robinson, thirty years of age and living at No. 6 Bedford street, found guilty of selling five and ten-cent packages of cocaine on the streets and sentenced to six months; Fred Hayes, twenty-seven, arrested for selling cocaine on the streets, fined $20, which he could not pay; November 16—Annie Latzer, fifty-one, No. 12 Fay street, sentenced to six months, appealed; James Devine, thirty-five, a waiter, arrested on Beach street, case continued until Monday; Francis Greaton, thirty, No. 11 Webb street, sentenced to two months, and Micenlo Pisciello, alias Jack Fox, arrested November 18, sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

Richard Finin, twenty-three, an aerial performer, living at the Pilgrim House on Washington street was arrested on March street by Inspector Gelvey from headquarters on selling cocaine to a Watch and Ward Inspector.

None on Police Evidence.

In the past month not a single arrest for cocaine selling has been made by the Boston police on their own evidence. Secretary J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society issued a formal statement that cocaine selling is still rampant in this city in spite of the arrests for that crime made by his agents. He said:

"Boston is and has been for some years a centre of cocaine trade. The traffic in this insidious drug has spread with alarming rapidity with the inevitable result that many young men and women have fallen victims to its use. The byways are the haunts of scores of wrecks of humanity, pitiful, forlorn creatures driving forward toward a horrible death and begging for the price of the stimulant which has been their ruin. Agents of this society have arrested in the last six weeks twenty-one men and women engaged in the pursuit of furnishing the means by which others may fall. Although these people have been, for the most part, dope fiends themselves, their work as distributors is none the less potent. We have found the drug seller in many cases to have a criminal record, and it is a fact that the use of cocaine and morphine is the most prolific cause for the making of a criminal. There is still a large field in this endeavor."

Ex-Soldier Caught.

Discharged prisoners from Deer Island have made the charge that morphine and cocaine, as well as whiskey and tobacco, can be easily purchased by the prisoners there. It is also claimed that prisoners with a political "pull" are favored among the inmates. One former inmate made claim that he was addicted to the use of when in solitary confinement as well as when he was occupying the regular cells. These have been on presentations at Deer Island for smuggling opium and other opiates for years. It is generally believed that when drugs are found on a prisoner they are seized and turned to the hospital for medicinal use.

Mark Fred, one of the men arrested through Watch and Ward Society agents, when arrested wore the uniform of a coast artilleryman, and he admitted he was formerly stationed at Fort Warren. It was found that he had been dishonorably discharged some time ago, and it was thought that he may be the one who had been selling drugs among the marines.

CATHOLICS TO HAVE A GREAT WEEKLY PAPER

Archbishop O'Connell has inaugurated a new departure in the fiscal policy of the Boston Pilot which promises to lead to large and substantial results in increased circulation for that paper. By request of the Archbishop, the Pilot has reduced the annual subscription to $1, beginning January 1, and the price of single copies to two cents. In making this change the head of the archdiocese is actuated by the desire to place the paper in every home throughout the great ecclesiastical territory over which he presides.

Every religious denomination in the country has weekly publications that give the news of their respective faiths in a wide circle of readers. There is no reason why the Catholic Church should not have a prosperous weekly that would be worthy of its name.

The Pilot is ably edited. It is a great weekly newspaper. It deserves universal support and support. During the lives of John Boyle O'Reilly and James Jeffrey Roche it was a recognized power.

To show how deeply interested Archbishop O'Connell is in the welfare and development of the Catholic press of the United States, the following letter is reprinted from America, one of the leading Catholic weekly reviews of the present time:

To the Editor of AMERICA:

I enclose to you herewith check for $50 to pay for subscriptions to as many people as are unable to pay for them themselves, but who are in need of a Catholic paper in their homes, and whom you may know throughout the various provinces of your influence and information. AMERICA is to be sent to these applicants for a year.

The duty of supporting the Catholic press rests on every one after those Holy Father's solemn charge to the bishops. Every day's publications to-day prove the urgent and growing necessity for the wide diffusion of truth. Catholic pleas.

I have my own projects for the diocesan organ which needs all the influence and support I can give it, but I am acting under the principle for the general good implied in the Holy Father's command to us and in compliance with the great duty that nothing local impede the progress of the general good. In the light of this principle and my duty as I understand it, the success of the general good always brings abundant blessings on the local endeavors.

WILLIAM H. O'CONNELL,
Archbishop of Boston.

Boston, October 25, 1909.

ARMY NEEDS $800 MORE FOR DINNERS

The Salvation Army is still two short of the amount required to furnish the 2,000 free Thanksgiving dinners to the poor for which it has arranged. That number is but half of the number of dinners served last year.

It is likely that the difference between the Army and Chairman Fowler of the Overseers of the Poor will be removed by a compromise in season to permit of the collection from the public of the funds needed. Mr. Fowler said that he had called up the attorney for the Army to request a conference. He said that he was willing to make recommendations to his board removing the restrictions which the army has found objectionable, but that he would be obliged to defer action until after the conference.

The last ticket of the 2,000 for the dinners at the People's Palace has been given out. To feed the 2,000 persons, 1,500 pounds of chicken, 400 pounds of turkey, with considerable quantities of vegetables, will be used.

Officials and army workers report that there are increased demands for tickets this year, and that in many cases the disappointment following the necessary refusal is painful to contemplate.

Colonel Gifford, the commander of the Boston contingent of the army, reports the receipt of the following letter from the president of the New England Dry Goods Association:

Dear Sir—I beg to inform you that I am a hearty sympathy with the stand you have taken in reference to soliciting funds for the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners. It seems to me to be an outrage to think the overseers of the Poor have taken such an arbitrary stand in this matter. I consider that your system of making the poor people of Boston happy on the above days is one of the greatest charities in Boston and should be helped by every individual who is able to do so.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) J. C. R. SMITH.

WELLFLEET IN FIRE DANGER

WELLFLEET, Nov. 20.—A fire which the Selectmen believe to have been of incendiary origin destroyed four buildings in the centre of the town early this morning, but for the absolute calm which prevailed would have left the whole town in ashes. The damage is estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The blaze was first discovered in the ice cream establishment of James F. Rich. It was under strong headway, and in a few minutes had worked up to the public library quarters. The town is without fire fighting apparatus, and before a volunteer bucket brigade could be organized the flames had spread from the brick building in which they originated to the bakery of George P. Baker. This structure, of wood, was all ablaze in a few minutes, and the destruction was quickly followed by that of the building occupied by Frank Chamberlain, the village butcher.

DOWAGER DUCHESS CONSUELO IS DEAD

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Consuelo, Dowager Duchess of Manchester, died early to-day of heart failure following an attack of neuritis. The duchess had been ill for some time, but recently complications developed and she failed rapidly. She died in her London residence, No. 3 Grosvenor square, where she had been attended by Sir Alfred Fripp, assisted in ordinary to King Edward. During her illness her sisters, Lady Lister-Kaye and Miss Emily Yznaga, were with her. King Edward made frequent inquiries concerning her condition. The Dowager Duchess before her marriage was Miss Consuelo Yznaga of New York. She married the Viscount Mandeville on May 22, 1876.

LABOR ENTERS THE CAMPAIGN

To question the numerous candidates for Mayor and the City Council and, if possible, learn of their attitude toward organized labor, Boston Central Council of City Department Employes' Union to-day came out with a specially appointed committee selected for that specific purpose at its last night's meeting.

The unions want to know what each candidate considers a just wage and working-condition agreement for the men employed in the different municipal departments. One candidate for Mayor in particular, is credited with saying he favored hiring city labor in the cheapest possible market, regardless of the unions, and the city employes will endeavor to learn whether he was correctly reported.

President Edward F. Connolly, Secretary Joseph P. Kilroy and Michael P. O'Brien of the Street Paving Department constitute the committee and will make a detailed report at the next meeting of the council.

President Connolly, Secretary Kilroy and James P. Timlity of the Paving Department union and Peter F. Mullen of the Park Department union were named as a committee to call upon the officials of the Park Department and endeavor to have the men recently laid off reinstated.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

"NO CUSTOMS FRAUDS HERE"

Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury Department issued a statement at Washington to-day that no frauds similar to those uncovered at New York have developed at the Boston customs house. The secretary praises James B. Reynolds for his work while Mr. Reynolds was assistant secretary in charge of the customs service. Mr. Reynolds, he said, gold particular attention to the customs house at Boston with a view to keeping the service at a high standard of efficiency and honesty. An occasion required Mr. Reynolds reduced, discharged or transferred unsatisfactory employes, with the result that conditions in Boston are entirely respectable.

At New York William Loeb, jr., collector of the port, said to-day that he intends to continue the shakeup in the office until the custom house is entirely respectable.

"I am continuing my investigations and I can say that there are some heads to be lopped off soon," he declared.

"More employes have been dismissed from the New York office since I took charge than during the entire previous history of the service," he continued, "and we are not through yet. We are going to keep at it until the New York Custom House is made thoroughly respectable."

The Federal grand jury is in session in New York and further indictments in connection with the sugar frauds are expected.

VAST CROWD SEES CRIMSON AND BLUE GIANTS BATTLE IN STADIUM

by cars each game over from New York early to-day, carrying more than 5,000 passengers, all bound for the game. The sleeping cars were packed. Every berth was taken.

It was estimated that 40,000 people would see the game.

Constant Stream to Stadium.

They had breakfast immediately and spent little time in Boston, coming almost directly to Cambridge. The first Boston & Albany train, arriving at 12:30 o'clock at Allston, deposited 1,500 passengers, who hurried over the mile walk to the Stadium. Thereafter every few minutes a train let loose another thousand or so, who made the procession from Allston unending.

Over the little old wooden bridge leading from Cambridge, the people tramped, almost like an army, the police had difficulty in keeping the bridge open. The great war, the early crowd.

It was a gay, good-natured gathering, the like of which only a football game—a Yale-Harvard game—can produce. It represented millions upon millions of dollars, and the multi-millionaire and his family rubbed elbows with the poor college student, and his "best girl."

The girls were a sight to behold, thousands of the fairest ever seen in one gathering. A homely girl hasn't a chance to appear in the Stadium on Yale-Harvard day, unless she happens to be possessed of wealth. There is a competition of beauty.

Yale Squad Arrives.

The Yale football squad, led by big Ted Coy, arrived from Auburndale at 1:30 and were roundly cheered all the way to the gymnasium building. They were minus their old bulldog, its place being taken by a fluffy little French poodle that caused a shriek of laughter all the way along the route. The Yale bunch were forty in number, all told.

Harvard's squad arrived early at the locker building. They passed the time before the game lounging about and were in great spirits. Every man-jack of the moment and confident of winning.

Over in Harvard Square an immense crowd had assembled, a laughing, cheering throng of young men and women, all carrying crimson flags. The girls wore their gay est gowns, all with a touch of red here or there. Some had red hats with great crimson feathers. Others wore red coats. Some were dressed in red from head to foot. The streets were primed with crimson magaphones, prepared to yell as never before. The square was alive with vendors selling "the winning colors."

Crowd Kept Coming.

As parts of this crowd drifted away toward the Stadium, Harvard square was in an endless procession, deposited more to take their places. Those who came from Boston dropped off at the end of the line, like approaching the square, filling every street and path leading to the Stadium. A constant stream of cars rolled down Western avenue and unloaded quickly directly across from the football field.

The cars carried thousands of Yale partisans, the girls usually clad in blue and all carrying blue flags. The Connecticut and Rhode Island girls had provided themselves with new gowns, particularly for the occasion, and they were a spectacle of rare beauty.

With such a great early crowd it appeared certain at 12:30 o'clock that 50,000 or 55,000 people would be in and about the Stadium when play was called.

Such an enormous crowd was never before seen in Cambridge, and it is doubtful if such a crowd ever gathered anywhere for an athletic or sporting event. There were enough to populate a large city, and it would be one of the rarest cities on earth, with its brains, beauty and wealth.

The being day made everybody happy. The morning opened like a day in Spring, just cool enough to be invigorating. The sun smiled down all morning, crossed noon and then by a miracle, but gentle assurance of comfortable football day. No such Yale-Harvard day had been seen in years.

Stadium Wonderful Sight.

A great crowd was in the Stadium within a few minutes after the gates opened. Within an hour the Stadium was filling, while a constant stream of humanity was pouring through all the openings in the amphitheatre.

Away up in the periptic zone of wooden seats called the Bleachers Field. On the very top of the walls, heretofore reserved for the newspaper men, there were more than 2,000 seats. The wooden stand across the north end of the Stadium was supplemented with new side stands filling every inch of space at right and left, and other hundreds of seats circled the base of the concrete piers, completely inside the field.

With these additional accommodations the Stadium was ready for 40,000 people, and it was certain that not only would every one of these pre-seats be filled, but that thousands would soon be filled, but that thousands would remain outside, hoping for a chance to see at least a part of the game.

Speculators had been unable to get large blocks of seats, only those who had obtained a few held them at a price higher than has ever before been asked. The police forbade the speculators to approach the Stadium, but a few were located in nearby doorways, where the police could not interfere with them. Pairs, clothes from the Boston and Cambridge police departments were busy watching for speculators and for pickpockets, and they were reinforced by detectives in the employ of the Harvard athletic authorities.

Fight on Speculators.

Never before had such extensive arrangements been made to keep the tickets in the hands of the bona fide undergraduates and graduates. Graduates from a distance who had applied for tickets intending that they be called for by friends from Boston Cambridge and the East were largely foiled by the system of depositing the tickets in Cambridge postoffice under postal registry. Those who sought their tickets this way were confronted by the postal laws which make it a criminal offense to sign another's name to a registry receipt.

Harvard students who disposed of their tickets did so secretly, soliciting no speculators. There was a tremendous demand for seats in the city, but this could be procured from the usual sources, the few available having been taken last night or had been expected that Yale men would have come to spare, but they apparently were mostly exhausted before they reached Boston.

10 to 9 on Yale Best Odds.

Betting, which had been heavy up to last night, was resumed this morning with Yale ruling a slight favorite, the odds being about nine Yale to ten Harvard. The Harvard men forced the odds up to 10 to 9 on Yale and some 2 to 1 was finally made at even money.

The Yale rooters claim that the Blue would score at least two touchdowns brought out a wealth of money at 2 to 1 against the proposition. One Harvard man bet $200 to $1,000 just before the game that Yale would not score at all. Yale men were offering 2 to 1 and sometimes 5 to 2 that Harvard would not score, but their money was quickly taken.

The weather man made good his promise that there would be no rain, and as a result pretty girls put on all their most bewitching finery.

Cheer Leaders Work Hard.

The cheer leaders gave a performance to-day that exceeded in fervor anything that the Stadium ever witnessed. Here are the cheers rolled out:

Rah! Rah! Rah! Harvard!

Harvard! Harvard! Harvard!
Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah.
Harvard. Harvard. Harvard.

Harvard! Harvard! Harvard!
Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah.
Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah.
Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah. Rah Rah Rah.
Harvard Harvard Harvard Harvard
Harvard-Harvard-Harvard-Harvard.

The second cheer might be called the all-Harvard cheer, as it is the one that is used to-day more than ever before. The last cheer was introduced two years ago.

Here is what the boys from Old Elf let loose:

Brekkekkekkex Co-ax Co-ax, Brekkekkekkex Co-ax Co-ax.

Oh Ah, Oh Ah, Parahinion Yale,
Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah,
Rah, Rah, Yale.

TWO CHILDREN ARE ATTACKED BY A BULLDOG

Samuel Miller, eight years old, and Florence Gilckstine, same age, were at locked and badly bitten to-day by a savage bulldog. Two policemen, after a one hour's battle with the dog, finally cornered and shot him.

Little Miller lives at No. 383 Eastern avenue, Malden. The little Gilckstine girl lives at No. 5 Suffolk street, same city. With several other children they were playing about the Daniel Grammar School in Malden.

seemed peaceable, the children said. Suddenly the brute flung itself on the boy and bit his legs in several places. Then he attacked little Florence and bit her on the arms. The other children fled shrieking to their homes. The dog soon ran it had bitten the boy and girl ran away.

Policemen Dinh Gray and James Burge started from headquarters to get the dog. Finally they found him near the Daniel School, where he had come back after chasing the children away. For a half hour the policemen chased the dog around the school building. Finally they cornered the animal in a doorway, where they killed him.

JILTED FOR MOTHER, GIRL TAKES POISON

ELGIN, Ill., Nov. 20.—When Florence Honert, a pretty girl of twenty-two, was told by the man she was to marry that he no longer loved her, but loved her mother, the distracted girl killed herself with cold. The man is Fred Hahn. He told the coroner's jury that he had been engaged to Miss Honert, but liked her mother better. The girl left a note for her mother, reading: "Be good. I don't care to live any longer."

NAVY MEN DROPPED IN BOILER PROBE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—As a result of an investigation of imperfect boiler tubes on the cruiser West Virginia, the Navy Department has decided to order the dismissal from the Federal service of Edward Kavanaugh, master boilermaker of the Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco, and his acting assistant, Joseph Coletti.

FEAR FOR AMERICANS IN VOLCANIC ZONE

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Anxiety was felt here to-day for a party of American tourists who were on Teneriffe in the Canaries when the volcanic eruptions of Mount La Sabores threw the inhabitants into panic and did heavy damage. Reports received to-day say that the eruption has been renewed and a great stream of lava is flowing forth.

MRS. CHRISTY SUES ARTIST FOR CHILD

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Mabelle Thompson Christy of New York to-day brought suit in the local Probate Court against Howard Chandler Christy, the noted artist, asking for a writ of habeas corpus to secure possession of their ten-year-old daughter, Josephine.

The Christys have not been divorced, but they have not been living together for some time.

HOST POURS INTO BOSTON FOR GAME

The incoming trains were all late in arriving at the South Station to-day because the great crowds necessitated running them in two sections. Every train was filled with enthusiastic football rooters. They made the big South Station ring with their yells and cheers.

The Fall River boat, due at 8 o'clock, did not get in until 8:30. The Federal express, which should have been here at 7, was an hour late, and the 8 o'clock arrived behind. The New York Shore line train, which was expected at 6:57, was forty-five minutes late, while the 7 o'clock Albany train did not get in until 8.

A big force of policemen was on hand at the South station to prevent any disorder and to guard the visitors against pick pockets. It was reported to-day that the police had reason to believe that an unusually large number of the light fingered gentry were in the city in the expectation of reaping a fine harvest in the big crowds.

Host Arrives in Autos.

Many of the Yale boys came in from New Haven in automobiles. Just as dawn was breaking a big honk-honk machine, carrying eight collegians, tore into town. The car was emblazoned with Yale colors and the word "YALE" in letters a foot high stuck out wherever there was room. The colors were pretty dusty, but their vocal cords were still in working order.

The New Haven road run but one special train, carrying members of the Harvard Club from New York to this city. The train started from New York at 7:10 a. m. and is due here shortly after 12 o'clock. This train consists of seven cars, including a dining car. There were nearly 200 old graduates on the train. It was arranged to run it over the Boston & Albany tracks from Springfield and land the crowd at Allston. The special is scheduled to start back at 5:42.

A number of private cars were attached to the different sections of the regular trains, most of them leaving on the 11 and 12 o'clock expresses from New York. Harry P. Whitney, R. S. Oasnett of Philadelphia and John de Sagnes, the old Yale oarsman, all had private cars, and others who carried large parties in this exclusive manner were O. G. Jennings, H. J. Haskell, Richmond Talbot and Charles H. Cornwith of Chicago.

As an indication of the scarcity of tickets in New York it was reported that a New Haven man tried to dispose of a pair of seats for $150.

The man spent several hours and some money telephoning to New York hotels, but the clerks he got on the wire did not seem as eager to get the tickets as he thought they would.

Gus Schmid, the head clerk at the St. Regis, was caught at the end of the telephone. He was the first thing after he had reached the hotel.

"Say," said the man in New Haven, at thirteen and a third cents a minute, "got anybody there who wants two good seats for Saturday's game? I have two cracker-backs right on the 20-yard line, and I'll sell them cheap."

"How much?" queried Schmid.

"One hundred and fifty dollars for the pair. Let me know right away, will you, as I may be able to sell them elsewhere."

Schmid fell up against the office safe. "Say," he whispered into the receiver when

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This last bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and, at 25 cents, it will surely take away the itch at once.

GLOUCESTER MAN RUN OVER BY TAXI

Charles Martin, thirty-eight, of No. 8 Hancock street, Gloucester, was pushed off the sidewalk in front of the Adams House into the path of a taxicab, driven by Charles H. Crego. The Gloucester man was knocked down and had both legs broken. He had come here to witness the game to-day.

CHELSEA RELIEF MEETING CALLED

The Chelsea relief committee, organized after the fire which destroyed that city, has called a public meeting for November 29 at 3 p. m., in the Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of deciding whether a fund shall be taken from the fund now on hand for the benefit of Chelsea institutions. A public notice has been sent out to the people of Chelsea by James J. Storrow, chairman of the general relief committee. It has been proposed that $14,000 be taken from the fund and given to the Frost Hospital, the only public hospital in Chelsea.

HOLD ZELAYA RESPONSIBLE IN EXECUTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—President Zelaya of Nicaragua is held personally responsible for the execution of Leroy, Cannings and Leonard Groom, Americans, in a report received by the State Department to-day from United States Consul Caldera at Managua.

It was said at the State Department that the claim of Zelaya's officials that Groom and Cannon were executed because they were laying dynamite mines in the attempt to destroy troopships of Zelaya's army will not be a defence.

The cruiser Tacoma sailed to-day from Guantanamo, Cuba, for Corinto, and will be within easy striking distance of the Nicaraguan coast.

Lawyers here who have been consulted assert that the execution was unwarrantable savagery. Letters to the families of the deceased have been kept for evidence.

FIVE DAYS LEFT TO SUBSCRIBE $75,000

Five days remain in the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. campaign to raise $150,000 for a building fund. Half of that amount has been raised. On each of the remaining five days of the campaign $15,000 must be raised. The total amount must be subscribed before Thanksgiving in order to get about $20,000 conditional gifts. Several residents of Boston visited the Cambridge headquarters to-day to proffer their assistance. These included A. S. Johnson, president of the Boston Y. M. C. A. He is interested in the work of all the associations around Boston.

WOMAN IS AFTER ALDERMAN'S BERTH

WORCESTER, Nov. 20.—For the first time in the history of Worcester there will be a woman on the official ballot for Alderman for city election to be held in December. She is Mrs. Rose M. Fenner of No. 554 Main street, who is prominent in Socialist circles throughout the State, and was nominated for the position of Alderman in Ward 9 by the Socialists at a union meeting held last night. Mrs. George H. Coates of the same ward, who is de Sagan, committed suicide to-day just out as a candidate for re-election on the before he was in face legal on a charge Republican city ticket. of obtaining money by fraud.

MAN WHO MARRIED DE SAGANS SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Justice of the Peace William C. Badenhausen of Hoboken, who married Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan, committed suicide to-day just before he was in face legal on a charge of obtaining money by fraud.

SPECULATORS GIVEN A SCARE AND FOOTBALL TICKETS TOOK A DROP

Fear that speculators' tickets for the price all right if it wasn't for the fact that Harvard-Yale game would be refused at the the people are afraid that the tickets are Stadium caused the price of the precious fakes. Either that or they are afraid that pasteboards to drop to a price early to-day they will be taken from them at the Stadium entrance.

at which the speculators themselves declared they were losing money. On "speculators' Row" holders of tickets were complaining that they were "stuck."

Most of the speculators claim to have paid $5 a pair for their tickets. They were offering them for $30 with no takers. There were about 100 speculators on Washington street near Franklin street to-day. It was estimated that they held between 200 and 300 pairs. Single tickets were offered at $10 each with few takers.

Many of the little traffic dodgers are among the speculators themselves. As one ticket holder said, "we could get our money in sight.

STORROW OUT AS PRESIDENT OF CHAMBER

James J. Storrow has resigned his position as president of the Chamber of Commerce to make his fight for Mayor of Boston. His resignation was accepted at a special meeting to-day. Mr. Storrow's letter is as follows:

It is proper under existing circumstances that I should resign as president and director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Will you kindly consider that this constitutes my formal resignation?

I take this opportunity to thank the the directors, the officers and the members for their constant patience and loyal co-operation.

I believe that the Chamber of Commerce will exert a power for the advancement of New England's interests and the up-building of Boston never before known in the history of our city.

In accepting the resignation the directors passed the following resolution:

Resolved, that in reluctantly accepting the resignation of President Storrow, the directors of the Chamber of Commerce desire to express their high appreciation of the able, broad-minded, unselfish and untiring attention he has devoted to the duties of his office during a period which has covered the great extension of the work of the Chamber and its consolidation with other organizations, with all the attendant complications and difficulties.

IMMIGRANTS IN FIRE PANIC

Sixty immigrants were thrown into panic, the fire boat was called out, one fireman was hurt and a dense crowd blocked all traffic in Atlantic avenue this afternoon as the result of a fire which did damage estimated at $500 in what is known as the Custom House Block in Long Wharf.

Custom House Block is a five-story granite building occupied by stores and offices. Fire started in the basement in oil and supplies kept there by Howard R. Sawyer and McLean Brandin, whose stores are on the street floors.

Thick smoke rolled from the basement filling the five-story block and the rooms of the immigration station directly in the rear. Sixty immigrants in the station became terrified. Women cried and screamed with terror at the sight of the smoke.

It being the lunch hour no official was present except Deputy Immigration Commissioner Hurley. He tried to quiet the immigrants and sent over a call for tugboats to take the immigrants from the building.

When the fire department arrived Chief Grady, to prevent the spread of flames, had the firemen surround teh building. This, too, helped to quiet the immigrants and it was not necessary to remove them from the station.

CRITICISM STIRS UP MAYOR OF LOWELL

LOWELL, Nov. 20.—Stirred up as the result of criticism of the city charity department made by Robert J. Crowley, president of the Lowell Water Board, Mayor Brown has called for an investigation of both the water and charity departments.

The Board of Aldermen has passed an order to appoint an investigating committee to be composed of two Aldermen and three members of the Common Council. The lower board has got to concur in this order.

Mr. Crowley who made the criticisms of the charity department is one of the Democratic candidates in the campaign for Mayor.

FORTUNE TELLER MADE HER WED CHINAMAN

PITTSBURG, Nov. 20.—Believing it was her fate because a fortune teller told her she would marry a Cinnamon, Sing W. Miller, twenty-four, a beautiful Sunday School teacher, married Charles Song.

Her friends surrounded the office of the Alderman to mob the Chinaman, but the couple had escaped after the ceremony.

SCHOOL FOR WHITE PLAGUE VICTIMS

At the meeting of the Cambridge school board, Professor Beale suggested that the Holmes School, which the board is about to abandon, be used for pupils affected with tuberculosis. He suggested that the Anti-Tuberculosis League be asked to provide the pupils with warm clothing if the school committee will furnish a teacher and books.

ANTI-FOOTBALL LAW RESULT OF KILLING?

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 20.—The police to-day began an investigation into the death of Albert P. Wilsenicke, the seventeen year-old boy whose spine was broken in a football game yesterday. His injuries were similar to those which caused the death of Cadet Byrne of West Point, one result of the fatality will be an effort at anti-football legislation in this State. It was in the second half of a high school game that the boy was killed. Wilsenicke was given the ball and carried it to the thirty-yard line. He was tackled low and in falling pitched on his head, doubling it under his body.

$150,000 CIGARETTE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—A fire, supposed to have been started by a cigarette from a cluster of buildings, consumed that building to-day and licked up eleven adjoining houses. The loss was $750,000. The Coliseum janitor is reported missing.

STORY TRUE OF MRS. NICK SAYS WRITER

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—A special cable to the Times to-day says:

"I am a rather lonely 'se lier,' says Fraulein Emma Knobel, the Berlin authoress, whose book, recently issued here, contained a sensational account of the behavior of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, then Miss Alice Roosevelt, during her visit to Korea in 1905 while her father was President.

According to this account, Miss Roosevelt, clad in a scanty riding habit, was cavorting boldly, flourishing a whip, and cantering in an horseback upon an entertainment in her honor, given by the Emperor of Korea at the gate of his consort, and had climbed upon a sacred elephant and, sitting astride there, asked Mr. Longworth, who was standing, to snapshot her.

Fraulein Knobel's remark was made upon a statement read before her at Mr. Longworth's statement to the effect that the woman who wrote the book was crazy, or worse, and that her statements were absurd.

Fraulein Knobel, who is a comely, dignified woman of thirty five or forty years of age, was not in the slightest degree upset by the denial of her account of the Korean episode issued by Mr. Longworth. "I can understand that Mr. Longworth is annoyed," she said, "but I vouch absolutely for every statement contained in my book. Miss Roosevelt did conduct herself exactly as I have described.

Mr. Morgan, the representative of the American legation, Mr. Foster, the American consul general, and Street, the American consul, as well as myself, can confirm my version of the affair."

Mr. Taft was with his party with the Roosevelt-Longworth party as Mr. Long worth's personal guest. The present President was never in Korea at all, at any time when Fraulein Knobel, and many of Mrs. Longworth's country women have met the "Princess Alice" in a tandem.

Fraulein Knobel, who returned from the Far East to the West of the Mississippi Mr. Taft by way of the Transsiberian Railway, describes him as "delightful" and

COMPERS IS AGAIN HEAD OF FEDERATION

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—Samuel Gompers was to-day unanimously re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor. Amid cheers he pledged himself to fight for labor, though he had to do it behind prison bars.

The following were elected officers by unanimous vote: James Duncan of Quincy, Mass., first vice-president; John Mitchell, second vice-president; James O'Connell, third vice-president; D. A. Hayes, fourth vice-president; William Huber, fifth vice-president; Joseph F. Valentine, sixth vice-president; John Alpine, seventh vice-president; Henry B. Perkins, eighth vice-president; Joseph N. Lennon, treasurer; Frank Morrison, secretary.

Those officers constitute the executive council. The fortieth annual session was opened with the report of the conference of national and international presidents on the conflict between organized labor and the United States Steel Corporation. The report of the conference called for a meeting of the executive heads of all organizations affiliated with the American Federation in Pittsburg December 15, for the purpose of outlining the policy to be pursued in combatting the war being waged upon the Steel Trust on organized labor. The report was adopted.

The conference is to be called by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and is in to be represented either in person or by some one selected by him.

William B. Wilson of the United Mine Workers, and member of Congress from the Fifteenth District of Pennsylvania, and Thomas M. Guerin, president of the Longshoremen's International Union, were elected delegates to the British Trades Union congress.

"Mitchell, Morrison and I will not beg for mercy but will go on fighting for the rights of the people," declared Gompers in his speech. In opening his address he said:

GAS, DYSPEPSIA, HEARTBURN AND OTHER STOMACH MISERY GOES.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a feeling of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your Stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digesting and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince every stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that your indigestion and sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly without any fuss or discomfort all of any kind of food you eat.

MAT BALDWIN WINS DECISION IN 10 ROUNDS

SYRACUSE, Nov. 20.—Matty Baldwin, the Charlestown, Mass., fighter, made a big impression here by walloping Tommy Carey of Philadelphia in their ten-round bout.

Carey played right into Baldwin's hands, as he carried the fight and Baldwin picked him off with jabs and hooks as the Quaker rushed him, and at the end of the artistic argument there was no doubt left as to who was the winner.

Owing to Baldwin's cleverness, Carey did not have a chance in his wild rushing tactics, and he scarcely laid on half a dozen telling blows during the entire session.

In the fourth round alone did Carey hold his own with his more experienced adversary. Baldwin played with Carey almost throughout the affair and the latter showed himself a poor judge of distance and time and again the "Human Bulldog" misstepped his blows or landed with good effect.

FRANCE TO HOLD GRAND PRIX AUTO EVENT IN 1910

By J. C. KERRISON.

In view of the attitude of the Automobile Club of France toward road racing the past year or two, it is rather an assailing proposition that this organization has put before the automobile public. The club proposes, if enough manufacturers will support its plan, to return to the promotion of road racing, and not only that, but to return to the days when such races were held almost without restrictions as to cars. Briefly the club has announced that, providing proper support is assured, it will conduct in 1910 a renewal of the Grand Prix race, at a distance of 500 miles, and open to cars without limit as to weight and horsepower. As incidents to this contest of racing monsters of the old days, it is proposed to hold a contest for volunteers in small cars, a dying machine meeting and a motor boat race.

"Eighty-one hundred miles on a set of tires is the best record I know of for a touring car," says W. Mason Turner. "I have been obliged to give an automobile demonstration entirely unprecedented in the annals of the sport. In every advertisement a circle display is used. At the upper points of the circle appears the Prest-O-Lite tank on the car, between the two points the space is filled attached to the engine now the car bar have been through the White Mountains two times and have been to New York and back four times. We are obliged to show from two to sixty miles an hour on the high gear, in all our daily demonstrating work, which is always more severe than any work an owner gives his private car.

"Just before making a record run to New York I decided to change three of the original tires which, by the way, were all intact and were not even showing the cords, but which I believed would not make the two-mile run from Boston to Bridgeport in the record time of five hours and thirty minutes. I attribute this great mileage, not only to the straight front construction of the Diamond tires, but also to the even torque of the tireless two speed motor. Then, too, the American Simplex is designed to give perfect balance and distribution of weight where the driving traction is needed."

Another distinctive feature has been added to the new Rambler for 1910 is the equipment of all models with a Rambler lamp of special design.

The top of the lamp is shaped to include the Rambler spare wheel to reflect. This spare wheel, aside from its value to the owner, has become a most valuable asset to the Rambler people from an advertising standpoint.

MANTELL BEATS NEIL BY KNOCKOUT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 20.—Disheartened from the second round, when he found his aim could not be touched, Al Neil, the San Francisco middleweight went out in the twelfth to Frank Mantell, his seconds throwing up the sponge when their fistic ward could no longer stand. Mantell put his arms around his opponent and held him on his feet until he was ready to fall.

In the first round the men felt each other out and Mantell seemed to know what kind of a customer he had to deal with by the beginning of the second. He went in from that time to win, and by incessant punching inside and out of the clinches bothered his opponent's face to a pulp.

Neil was bleeding from the left eye, nose, mouth, and a big split on his left cheek. Mantell left the fight unscathed.

During the battle the veteran Neil hardly touched his man, finding the heavy jolts for which he seemed unable to pierce Mantell's guard.

The biggest crowd that has attended a Sacramento indoor fight in the last record years was on hand.

Pete Sutton of Fall River, Mass., was in Mantell's corner, having trained him for the fight.

ONE BIG MATCH OFTEN MAKES FIGHTER FAMOUS

By TAD.

Fighters and fight dope are always interesting. One of the many interesting remarks you hear daily is in regard to a man who is matched with a champion. In the argument the first thing you hear is, "Well, who did he ever lick?"

They always have asked it, always will ask it, and you'll never hear of a big fight without the question attached, "Yes, who did he ever lick?"

What right had Jim Corbett to fight John L. Sullivan for the title in '92. Corbett had beaten Choynski, outpointed Kilrain and fought a sixty-one-round draw with Peter Jackson. But that didn't satisfy the fans.

What Jeffries Did.

Jeffries. What had he done to qualify for a battle with Fitzsimmons? He had knocked out Peter Jackson in three rounds won a decision over Tom Sharkey in twenty rounds and outpointed Bob Armstrong in ten. He refused to meet Steve O'Donnell, the man he had agreed to step on the same night.

Kid Mccoy. Had he any cop before he beat Tommy Ryan? Who did he over lick? Why, no one but a lot of pretenders. Yet he whipped Ryan to the Queen's taste.

Young Corbett and Terry McGovern. Why, it was a joke. A fat kid from Denver lick Terry? Huh! Lick a fighter? He hadn't done anything but break even with a bum in Chicago, yet they did something that no one in the world had ever done or has done since. He knocked out the great little McGovern and won a championship.

Who did Fitzsimmons ever lick before he tackled ever Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil? Why he was almost an unknown. He beat Billy McCarthy and Arthur Upham. But they were no bear cats. They turned trick, however.

Johnson Licked Second Raters.

What and Jack Johnson done before he beat Burns, Kaufman and Ketchel? Hardly anything, they said. He had beaten a bunch of sunkes and a few second-rate steams, but outside of that he had no record, you might say. He is a champion now.

Stanley Ketchel the same way. Before he fought Joe Thomas that twenty-round draw at Marysville he was a preliminary sensation. Later on, when they were still asking about him, he beat Thomas, Jack O'Brien, Sullivan, Mike O'Toole, Sullivan, Hugo Kelly, and Jack O'Brien.

None of them ever amounted to a row of beans until they were started right. Go right down the line and same good man was amounted to anything until he beat a preliminary. Why, they were still asking Joe Gans had ever beaten right up to the time he knocked out the greatest light weight that ever held the reins—Joe Gans.

It's a funny thing you never can peg a right. There's always some mystery about the man who is to meet a champion, but after he beats them all away. Why, certainly, any one could have seen that he was a comer.

No use talking, there are some game people in this world. Ever since Columbian got Spain in a row of something and Nero Brodie took the dive from the bridge people have been taking chances. The latest is the chance line are two young fighters in Spain in search of something and Stanley Ketchel. Tne Langford boy is going to make a big bruiser by the name of Mons Shreck pretty soon at Pittsburg.

The other little kid, Stanley Ketchel, is signed to bump the bumps with Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman.

Won't it be reckless men ever stop taking chances?

WANTS MASS PLAYS TO BE ABOLISHED

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—An appeal by counsel to their colleges for revision of football rules was issued by Henry M. MacCracken, chancellor of New York University, in an address to the Graduates' Club.

Dr. MacCracken said: "The intercollegiate athletic association will meet in this city the third day after Christmas. It is the power of this association to introduce changes in the game. I ask every graduate to write to his college and to join this national athletic association. If I be not already a member, and second, to send a delegate who wants mass plays abolished in football and such other changes introduced as will make the game as safe as the English rugby.

NEW YORK SCHOOLS MAY DROP FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The Board of Superintendents of the New York public high schools have voted to abolish football following the numerous accidents on the gridiron. This vote is merely a recommendation of the Board of Education, which will act on the matter Wednesday next. It is stated that Brooklyn educators are against this drastic action and a fight will be made for a modification of the order.

TO IMPROVE GROUNDS.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—The Cincinnati baseball club, it was learned today, will spend $50,000 in improving its grounds in time for the next season. The work will be taken off and 12,000 additional seats installed in hilltop form.

BOB FOWLER BEATEN BY FRED CAMERON

SYDNEY, N. S., Nov. 20.—The lanky New Brunswick Bob Fowler of Cumbridge and Fred Cameron, champion of Nova Scotia, met in Cameron's home town, Stellarton, this afternoon in a 10-mile race, breaking the indoor record of 55m. 15s., made at Boston by Fowler. Fowler finished a good five yards, doing the last lap at 100 yard clip.

Fowler finished in 55m. 10s. Five miles were covered in 26m. 23s.

HARLOWS TO CLASH WITH DORCHESTER

The Harlows of Dorchester and the Park Dorchester Heights of South Boston will clash in their sixth annual football game this afternoon at the Dunbar avenue grounds, Dorchester. The game will be called at 2:30 p. m. Both teams have made an enviable record this season, the Harlows winning five games, tying one and losing one, while the South Boston team has won six games and lost one.

Boxing News in Brief Form

That $140,000 bid for the big show from Idaho is pretty steep. The auctioneer had better shout "gone" and settle the matter.

It will be a tough job to keep Gleason, Berger, Jeffries and Co. from running the fight themselves, but Johnson will have a lot to say before the clubs is decided on.

Jeff took a ride up Broadway in an auto, and the driver was pinched for speeding. Jeff starts in on his one-night stand shortly. But that is a word-out way to "skyrocket" Jeff to help Jeffries.

"Jump off the new bridge or something."

Johnson will be in Pittsburg the same week that Langford fights Schreck. Langford's manager hopes to nail the big colored leader with a right while Lang-ford at that time. More advertising.

Billy Roche says that McFarland outpointed Thompson in their bout in Kansas City, and we are inclined to believe it. He says, too, that McFarland was so tired at the end that he could have hardly come another round, while Thompson looked good for a hundred.

It will be a tough job to keep Gleason, Berger, Jeffries and Co. from running the fight themselves, but Johnson will have a lot to say before the clubs is decided on.

Sid Hester must be reckoned as the among those bidding for the Jeffries-Johnson bout. Hester is making preparations to stage the affair, and says he can handle the contest even if the fighters agree to go 1,000 rounds.

When the men signed to fight forty-five rounds or more it was thought that Hester was out of the running. He will be paper spoiled when the bids are open and will go high for the contest.

CORNELL WINS BIG CROSS COUNTRY RUN

Cornell won the intercollegiate cross country run this morning over the Tech course in Brookline, as was expected by those who had closely followed the records of the ten colleges entered. It was a well pronounced victory for the Ithacans, as of the first eight men five were their representatives. The first Tech man was 11th in ninth position.

The surprise was Captain May of Michigan finishing third, and if he had started his spurt quicker he might have won second, for in the last lap of the distance he passed three men. Penn was expected to be in the running, but could only come in eighth.

Paul Withington, who will this afternoon play centre in the Harvard-Yale game for the Crimson eleven, was one of the starters finishing fourth.

Berna and Tappan of Cornell were the first two to finish, the time of the former for the distance, 6 miles 100 yards, being 33 minutes 5-5 seconds. England was only a second back of the leader. May's time was 33 minutes 12 seconds, Withington's 33 minutes 24 seconds and Young of Cornell passed past the tape in 33 minutes 41 seconds.

At 10:37 the pistol was fired and seven-ty runners, representing the nine colleges entered, were quick to respond. T. B. White of Tech was leading the five yards at the gate, some 200 yards from the start, followed by W. G. Berry of England and Capt. Game H. C. Watkins and H. F. Benson, both of Cornell.

At two miles the positions were Watkins 1st, 9 Miles of Tech, running hard and head, while five yards back was Benson and Dorr. The time for this distance was 11 minutes 30 seconds.

Summary:

Berna, Cornell, 1st; Tappan, Cornell, second; Captain May, Michigan, 3rd; Withington, Harvard, fourth; Young, Cornell, fifth; Cassels, Harvard, sixth; Hallowell, Harvard, seventh; Brown, Cornell, eighth; Watkins, Tech, ninth; Mackenzie, Harvard, tenth; Carlin, Penn, eleventh; Wright, Michigan, twelfth; Benson, Cornell, thirteenth; Dorr, Cornell, 14; Penn, 38; Cornell, 41; Michigan, 112; Yale, 114; Dartmouth, 125; Harvard, 142; Mount. Tech, 144; Penn, 187; Columbia, 202; Princeton, 204.

MAGNATES TO BAR SIGNAL TIPPING

By ALLEN SANGREE.

It looked today that one object of the approaching joint meeting between the American and National baseball magnates will be the passing of a stringent rule against the "buzzer." The proposition will be introduced by Ban Johnson, who is after Stallings's scalp. Johnson says that Harry Tuthill, trainer of the Tigers, has submitted proof convicting the pilot and manager of using, not a buzzer, but a paddle flash, of the American League ground this season.

For possible baseball circles and Western papers are scrutinizing Pierce for clues that Norman Kidd's Haverhill tipped off the signals to Stallings in Washington.

When Detroit was in the capital city the team was put wise, but on arriving in New York Tuthill kept his eyes peeled. He claims that he went back of centre field scores and discovered a certain minor league ex manager operating a field glass, with which he stopped for catcher's signs. Through an opening in the fence he was supposed to the Yankee batters, who thus knew whether to look for a fast ball, curve or pitch out.

All the fact remains that there is nothing in the rules to provide punishment for using one of these flash. It is a new wrinkle time and again in various ways, and has never been covered. But next season it will yell from all sides demanding that trickery be done away with. Chances are so low that he pennant in the National League will be settled by a close margin, any manager or player using such means would be an opponent of baseball.

The Harvard-Yale game will be described by experts and star writers in the Sunday American. It will be the BEST report published. And the photographs of the game will be unsurpassed.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

THIS IS THE DAY IT HAPPENS AND the stiff who dopes it out is not only a wise guy, and will be able to garner a considerable touch of kale this afternoon, for the betting kids are here. Probably never before in the history of a game at Cambridge has there been more of the coin of the realm placed loan talking its head in a chance to get placed. I'm agreeing hard and giving several ladylike pats for fair Harvard, but on the form sheet this has been slipped along to me. I'm going to put my money on the Crimson to place. If the Stadium boys nose out the Bulldog, however, I'm going to let the whole dollar and six bits go without a regret. I know a man I can touch for enough to enable several public losses to get to know me to-night, and I hope I'm not the wearing a plug hunter when I blow in.

BY THE WAY, IT MIGHT BE WELL for you to cart the family Bible along with you to the game. I understand that there is a possibility of a lot of fans being called on to kiss the book and cuss a mean swear that they didn't purchase their tickets from speculators, and of course, you can all do this with clear consciences for you would no more dream of patron-izing one of these birds as you would a student would dream of selling his pelter. Oh, No.

AT GREAT EXPENSE THE AMERI-can has secured the mansion of the Hon. Joseph Smith, which is on the Harvard side of the field, and from its windows and roof you can get a splendid view of the game. This is the first time that the Hon. Bunk has given his opinion to a newspaper and as such, it marks an epoch in the history of the sport. The Hon. Bunk says:

"On past performance I think it should be Yale second, but then Harvard won last year and may be expected to repeat. Yale is there with the plugging backs and Harvard is there with the strong line. It looks a very even match and the irresistible force will meet the immovable object this afternoon and, therefore, as I said before, Yale will probably be Yale, but if not, then Harvard."

MANY READERS OF THIS COLUMN have written me to know why the Straight Dope was not published in the Sunday edition. There are several reasons, and not the smallest one has been a dispo-sition on my part to loiter about for a few days in the week. However, the time has come when I've had that seven day a week gag wished on me and as Winter is coming and my old friend the Indoor baseball writers' union, I've got to come across. I've made a sad farewell to the book worm and when the whistle goes for the switching hour of noon, I won't have to eat show balls. From now on the dope appears in the Sunday edition of the American.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—I have read carefully Sullivan's dance Jeffries is training for Johnson and I am sorry to say that Mr. friend says he is changing and I am sorry to say that he is right. He don't think a white fighter is dreaming a new century more than the negro he fights with.
Yours, GEORGE H. SIMONDS.
Haverhill Mass.

Three cheers, old son. Now then for the first. If C. Roosevelt is the President of the United States, Jeff is the champion second. Five experts, including one who does not score in his record. Third: All men are alike in the squared ring. I get this sort of a letter about fifteen times a week. I'm going to have a stock answer set up in type to save time and wear and tear on the typewriter.

TIPPERARY SLASHERS AS THE Pan Wees would indicate a warm wooing session to-night in the baseball alleys particularly as Galway and Welsh will lead the Tipperaries to the slaughter of the innocents, or whatever the latter is having for leaders Lessler and O'Brien.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A number of friends of mine are interested in betting the other night, and the question of what was the longest price ever paid on a ten to one shot came up. We decided to write you for details. Yours truly, W. J. MANSFIELD.
Bridgeo, Mass.

I should have answered your query before but I had to do a little more than that subject and here is the answer. The Lenox Club, operated by Eddie Keevin and Joe Woodman while on Hanover street, had the following card in one of its shows during April, 1902, which certainly beats anything I ever saw recorded in the boxing line: Kid Goodman vs. Charley Goodwin. Tim Keefe vs. Mike Talk Sullivan. Jimmy Walsh vs. Kid Ryan. Johnny Shepard vs. Kid Broad. Young Nedeau vs. Terrible Tommy Hogan of New York. Can you beat that?

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Who are the Sullivan Twins said to be fighting in California?
JOHN.

It is reported that one in California the Sullivan Twins took a ride in a hack. They should not be blamed for this as it was a natural mistake. Ha, ha, ha.

E. J. M. QUINCY, MASS. THE score of the Harvard-Dartmouth 1908 game was 6 to 0, with Harvard on the long end.

SAMUEL J. GOLDSTEIN, 87 ARBOR street, Boston—Sorry I can't tell you how many football players have been killed this year, but one outside that lost his life playing football in the Sunday school league. This is the first time that the Hon. Bunk has given his opinion to a newspaper and as such, it marks an epoch in the history of the sport. The Hon. Bunk says:

"On past performance I think it should be Yale second, but then Harvard won last year and may be expected to repeat. Yale is there with the plugging backs and Harvard is there with the strong line. It looks a very even match and the irresistible force will meet the immovable object this afternoon and, therefore, as I said before, Yale will probably be Yale, but if not, then Harvard."

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you be so kind as to answer the following question in your paper? Two boys bet on the football game between Harvard and Yale last year. Harvard won by a score of 6 to 0. One boy bet a dollar to a dollar that in the early part of the game Harvard would make a touchdown. The other boy bet a dollar to a dollar that Harvard would not make a touchdown in the early part of the game. Which boy won the bet? Please answer in the next issue of your paper. Thanking you in advance, I am, Yours truly, CONSTANT READER.
Worcester, Mass.

You win your wager. C is not entitled to start in the seventh heat.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Will you please answer me and settle a bet? Who was the referee in the football game between Harvard and Yale last year? Thanking you in advance, I am, Yours truly, W. I.
Boston.

Yale was the favorite by about a city block. If you're figuring dope or laying bets for betting purposes you'd better get Wright Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Will you please answer me through your paper the following question? Two boys have organized an athletic club and would like to have a name for it. One boy wants to call it the Lenox Athletic Club, after the Lenox Hall, where they meet. Would like to have your opinion on the matter. Yours truly, Address J. D. Shute, 60 Russell street, Charlestown.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Kindly settle the following argument in your column. A good man says that Jeffries is in better condition than Johnson, giving as his reason that Jeffries is training at the ranch Mantell knows, but he says Johnson is in better condition because he says he trains on beer and college stuff.
The Mantell-Neil bout got been defeated the last time. Their names include Jack Keller, Tom-my Burns, Jack Johnson, Jeffries, Dillon, Ketchel, Powell, formerly of Brookline.
The Mantell-Neil bout was the first of the season. Americans Jimmie Cronin and Sisler, formerly of Boston College, are in it.
Hoping that you will publish this, I remain, Yours truly, DAVID KIMBALL.

SULTAN'S WIFE IN VAUDEVILLE—Read in the SUNDAY AMERICAN of her adventure after Hatlen on the harem and its inmates.

FILLY SOLD; BATES SORE

One of the disappointed Boston horsemen in the season's results is Walter J. Bates. He owned the three-year-old pacing filly Miss Eva Wilkes. Last Spring he sold half of her to Tom McDonald for $300, with the privilege of buying back the half at a certain date this Fall for $1,000.

The filly earned a handsome mike of each race this past season in which she took the word, though never at the top of a mile. Saturday, the day was timed separately in a single faster than that Mr. Bates claims he could have secured for her right here in Boston.

To put it mildly Mr. Bates was hot under the collar, or, as he says, McDonald had not consulted him in the sale.

He interviewed a lawyer to find what damages he could collect, but the attorney said that the laugh was on Mr. Bates as there was no way that one partner could hold another for what may have occurred in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

So all that Mr. Bates can do is to grin and bear it.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

The latest wonder to join the ranks of the big leaguers is Wingo Anderson, a one-armed pitcher, who hails from El Paso, Texas, and, it is said, will be tried out by Clark Griffith of the Reds, next season.

Anderson is a southpaw, and was picked up from an independent team in Texas, where he showed a remarkable control. Although he possesses a right arm, it is paralyzed and entirely useless.

Hans Wagner has accepted an offer to appear on the stage. He will team up with "Doss" Miller, the Pirates' second baseman, in a vaudeville skit which will net them $500 a week.

Big Bob Beacher, the Cincinnati left fielder, is almost as luminous a star on the gridiron as he is on the diamond, and has been causing Garry Herrmann and Clark Griffith to lay awake at night with fear that he will be seriously injured.

There are several big league leaders who could be mentioned that would not lose any sleep if Beacher were to take an enforced vacation next season, particularly those whose fences he has been breaking with regularity.

* * *

"Silk" O'Loughlin has gone to Cuba to umpire the remaining games scheduled by the Detroit Tigers on the island.

NOT LIKELY TO TRY ENGLISH REFEREE PLAN

Jim Jeffries has given the right fans of this country something new to think about by dropping that reference of his right with Johnson shall sit outside the ring. This is the one which pleases at the Boston Sporting Club in Huntington avenue, where Jeffries has seen a number of bouts decided.

The scheme appealed to the big fellow, and he figured that he'd have it tried in the next championship battle.

Americans, however, are not likely to take kindly to the suggestion for the Jeffries-Johnson fight, as they have been accustomed in a contest of such great importance to have the referee in the ring, from which stages the fight will want to try and now, either.

The English idea of refereeing, according to figures given by Jeffries, would mean something on the plan which prevails here at Newport and Narragansett Pier.

In England, the boxers are accustomed to breaking clean when ordered less to do so by the referee, and there is no clinching than the American boxers, and when told to break they do so right off the bat, without trying to hit on the breakaway. Should a better dispose of the referee in the ring, Jeffries says he is likely to be disqualified.

In this country the referee has no such touch. Boxers here clinch and hang on and they are forced to break by the referee, and by many of the spectators as a legitimate part of the game. Jeffries claims that the Nelson-McGovern bout to be nothing less than a farce.

In this country, too, boxers pay little heed to the referee's warnings. They clinch repeatedly, and in nearly every bout the referee is kept busy giving the boxers again. The English rule of having the referee's duties end at that point would nothing obedience to the referee's orders appears to be much better than the custom here.

Promoters in this city are usually on the watch for such a match. It is a wonder the scheme has not been tried. While the bouts here are good enough for the ten in small bouts, there is little chance of getting a good one if may be being tried out in a championship battle. The universality of the rules and local patrons have been gradually educated to the English plan.

BROCKTON TEAM GREATEST EVER

BROCKTON, Nov. 20.—Brockton claims the distinction of producing the greatest football team of any high school in the New England States. For the past few years Interesting stories have been corresponding with high schools all over the State with a view of learning whether this is true and, before the season opened, what the eleven of 1902 was the greatest ever of its kind.

On the team was Arthur Edward Brides, who made a name for himself in the All national reputation at Yale, with which team he played end for three years. Captain Burch a hustle for the captaincy. Another was Gerry Lee Preble, who also shone at Williston, and who played with Brockton for three years. He was picked by many for the All American team for the position, his friend Capt. Harry also a Williston man, who now captains Harvard's football team, and Walter P. "Chick" Raymond, for the past three years a star on Yale's baseball team and for the past two years its captain. He also played basketball on the varsity team, and is considered the best catcher in the amateur ranks in baseball. Captained by a member of Comisky's White Sox, Yale's baseball coach for next year, but Raymond, who was captain of Andover's ball team, is the player and who was recognized as the most popular boy at Andover when studying there.

Chadbourne Andrews, who is making a name at Medical, Baltimore; Bill Crosby, who shone at Brown on the gridiron and Captain Bennett and Tom Mahley, who were admitted the fastest fullback in this section in his high school days, are others mentioned. Bill Packard, Bill Haven, Bert Ford and Leslie Jackson, all Brockton boys, complete the team of which Brockton is justly proud.

BUTLER MAKES AEROPLANES

Nat Butler, the veteran Boston billiard player, is now said has become an aeroplane enthusiast, and has ordered one built over

PARIS, FRANCE, Nov. 9, 1909.
Boston American:

I am interested in the aeroplane game over here and am writing to ask what the prospects are for that game in America. This past season has been the best I have ever had on the bicycle, and I am thinking of being a flying man. I am building an aeroplane which will carry a passenger, a Frenchman. We will have that finished in a few weeks, and I am planning on going to America and building another machine there while I have him to attend to the business on this side.

Everyone here is getting aeroplane crazy, for it promises the most attractive sport. I believe it may be about the same as this is here. If so, several men are going to make money.

Still I don't know what the interest is in America. It would be a great thing to have a flying day at Readville or anywhere else on Nov. 30. Yours truly, A. P. BUTLER.

GOLF GOSSIP OF CLUBS

Great changes will be seen in the shade of the White House next year when the golfing season opens formally in Washington. Chevy Chase is undergoing great improvements, the most attractive being the piping laid to keep the greens in condition, causing an outlay of $4,000, besides the new sand traps. Added to this is a hole that has a capacity for 10,000 gallons. Some of the holes will be done away with entirely, and the new ones promise something more up to date.

Another Washington matter that can only be laid at the door of President Taft and the fact that the place is the property of a new club called the Columbia Golf and Country Club. The old Columbia Golf Club has been taken into this new organization, and with the new 150 acres purchased a very fine 18-hole course should be seen next year.

George Merritt of the Bretton Woods, N. H., and Ormond, Florida, golf professional was in town Tuesday on his way to the sunny South where he spends the Winter months.

WALTHOUR RETURNS FROM TRIP ABROAD

Bobby Walthour, one of the best all around performers in the world on a bicycle is doing his training in Newark before the six day grind, rice which is to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York. The little Southerner after a most successful season abroad, has just returned to ride at the six-day grind.

Walthour has been in Europe for the past year, clearing up the other riders over there with a good deal of regularity and has not been beaten twice as a paid rider, and is a most follow and one of the best in the business. He has followed pace for several years and, although he has met with several accidents, he is considered a careful man and a lucky one, too.

He is the most successful American pace follower in the world to-day, and not only has he shown the other Yanks how the way but also the best men in Europe. When a man can break the world's record and likewise the hearts of the world's champions, he is going some. He has been over in France, by winning from his wealth reputation, and has to admit that he is the best pace follower that has always ran right the stars and stripes with him in every race he has entered in the old country. Europe last year. And then, to rub it in, he won every race he entered on the other side.

Before he was asked what he considered his biggest victory he modestly replied that all of his wins were big ones.

Made World's Record.

"My greatest victory, however," said he "was the World's champion Revenge, which I won and in the same time smashed the world's record by seven minutes. That race was held in Copenhagen, after the Danish and Swedish event was held in which I finished fourth, due to an accident to my machine at about forty kilometres. The race was at the 100 kilometres, or the 62½ miles. That race was won by Peter Christensen, who was the world's champion pace follower. Jimmy Logan, one of Yanks, was second, and Nat Butler, the American, who is riding in good order to-day. The time for that race was one hour thirty four minutes.

"The bike fans over there know that I could give the other men a mile and another race was arranged, called the "Revenge," and it was this race in the same Copenhagen. The same competed, as we were the only ones to qualify for the final out of a crowd of about twenty-five. I got my pace quickly and took as I never rode before, as I was after that title. I called for faster pace when I saw that the others could not keep up with me, and soon had the field lapped, and not being satisfied, I lapped them again. The other three were unable to keep up, but I was there when it came to a sprint. Parent, the French-man, got excited, and yelled and yelled for faster pace, but when he got it he couldn't hold it, and was compelled to relinquish his title to an American. That race was for 100 kilometres.

"At the time I did not know that I was travelling so fast, but when the time of one minute for 25 minutes was announced I found that I had broken a record by seven and one-half minutes. The new racing rules have been adopted since, and pacemakers are being limited behind motors but next year I will be back in Europe. The Kaiser of Germany insisted that all racing must be done on the square, with a motor forty centimetres, or about sixteen inches from the rear wheel. That makes the rider almost a half a wheel's length from the pacemaker and it makes it harder for the rider."

Teams with Collins.

Germano Bonny won the grosser Feis at Dunedin, Province of Deutschland at Berlin, Brosser Park of Rhine at Dusseldorf and the race at Hanover. In all of these races he met the best men of Germany, and Bonny is the same Bonny of country, Stellbrink of Hanover and Parent of France were the same Parent of France.

Walthour rode with Eddie Root in Newark. During the grind next month Walthour will be teamed with Collins of Boston. The night before the race starts Walthour will meet in a match race with some foreigner that P. T. Powers has sent over from Europe.

Just a little tip to those who want to know this fistic game. Walthour is in the pink shape, and will be a dangerous man in the race, barring accidents. Three days after the grind New York will be off for Germany to compete in the six-day grind in that country. In that race he will team with John Stol.

RIALTO BILLIARD ROOMS ARE OPENED

Knights of the cue and the ivory sphere will no doubt be interested in the announcement that Mr. John J. Murphy, who for a quarter of a century was connected with the Hub Billiard Parlors in this city, has opened new and beautiful billiard and pool rooms at No. 121 Causeway street, opposite the North Station, Boston. Mr. Murphy, better known amongst his friends as Uncle John, knows the wants of the patrons of the game, and his rooms contain every convenience calculated to add to the pleasure of visitors, whether professionals or amateurs. The parlors are most artistically arranged and tastefully attractive, and the tables are the acme of perfection. Mr. Murphy has been a familiar figure in the billiard world for many years, and it will be pleasant for his numerous friends to drop in while away a few hours over the tables.

BOSTON AMERICANS DOUBLE

Thought and Work Are Aids to Opportunity

Copyright, 1909 by American Journal-Examiner.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Send forth your heart's desire, and wait and toil.

The opportunities of life are brought
To our own doors, not by capricious fate,
But by the strong, compelling force of thought.

A MAN of mature years, and decided talent whites me regarding his poems and stories:

"As you know, it is impossible for an unknown author to get anything accepted, no matter what its excellence, without an editorial."

Over and over in this column that most erroneous idea has been combated; yet over and over the mistaken public reiterates the stereotyped profundity.

Young men who seek positions in business, and young women who desire to follow some chosen career, fail to get this impression that they are prevented from success by LACK OF INFLUENCE. Again let me assert the TRUTH, THE WHOLE TRUTH, AND NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH.

How You May Succeed

First—Any man or woman living in the remote wilds or back woods who possesses talent and the power of expression and a message for humanity CAN GAIN THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC ALONE AND UNAIDED if the message is worth while and the talent vital, and the CHARACTER back of the talent strong enough to keep up the effort.

Second—No man or woman ever gained any lasting or real success through having another make the effort for him. One poem, one story, one picture, one song might be accepted through the intervention of some middle man.

But no editor, publisher, art critic or other merchant will continue to buy or use anything any person, obscure or famous, may have to sell, unless it is what he wants.

IF IT IS WHAT HE WANTS, HE WILL BUY IT FROM THE UNKNOWN AND OBSCURE GENIUS JUST AS QUICKLY AS FROM ANY OTHER.

A young woman of my acquaintance, who had never known that she possessed talent, suddenly after having passed through the wonderful experience of motherhood began to write verse.

Without consulting any one on the subject, she sent her verses to the leading magazines of America, and THEY WERE PROMPTLY ACCEPTED.

No editor who accepted these poems had ever heard of her previously. She had no influence, no "friend at court" in the world, simply talent and courage and ambition.

Many of her poems, since her first success, have been declined, but she keeps on sending them.

Recently she placed her work in the hands of a literary agent, who saves her trouble and time, and from whom I only obtained pieces her articles in the hands of editors to read.

There are such agents in both Boston and New York, and they are reliable and understand their business.

What Continual Effort Did

One successful author began writing at an early age, and from a remote and obscure hamlet in the West. Poems and stories were sent ten and twelve times at a long journey to and fro between Boston, Philadelphia, and were never allowed to remain longer at home, after a "return with thanks" than until the next post.

This author never thought of consulting anyone, or asking help or influence.

Gradually acceptances came; gradually editors took to be interested in the work, and gradually success arrived. AND THIS CONTINUAL EFFORT AND CONTINUAL TOIL, THIS CHARACTER, AND MAKE THE VITAL FORCES OF THE AUTHOR STRONGER.

Never was there such a demand for stories and poems and essays, and never such prices paid for them as today. But never were so many people writing; and the competition makes the opportunities for great success, or immediate results, fewer and longer delayed.

Editors are continually seeking something new; something out of the usual; and if the most obscure writer in the world supplies this kind of prose or poetry EDITORS WILL PROMPTLY ACCEPT IT. They will not accept what they do not want, no matter who urges them to do so.

Two famous authors may tell an editor that a poem or story is great, but if that editor and his circle of readers do not consider it suitable to their needs it will be refused. It is the suitable, not the best, work which editors often desire.

The proof of power lies not in one effort of mind or body. It lies in the CONSTANT APPLICATION of the mental and physical qualities which lead to success.

Her Thirty-ninth Try Won

One well-known young woman writer of the day told me recently that a poem of hers had just been accepted by the THIRTY-NINTH editor to whom it had been sent. Ten to twenty "declined" slips are the average of most of her poems and stories, unless the work has been ordered.

It is this spirit of determination and patience and persistence which has made her a success in the literary world. No one else could have opened these doors for her. She had to find the right key for each lock herself.

It is just so in any business, any trade, any occupation.

EACH HUMAN BEING IS HIS OWN MAKER.

Each is his own Destiny.

Look in, then on the Divine Power in your own soul, in the hosts of Invisible Forces ready to give help and strength and suggestions to a concentrated and determined mind; but ask no mortal to do your work for you.

If you are worthy of success, if you have chosen the right work, if you really want to succeed unveiling all the labor that word means, and submitting to all the difficulties, then NOTHING CAN HINDER YOU, AND NOBODY CAN HELP YOU.

But after you find yourself, and fully realize that on you alone depends results, then everything and everybody will unconsciously help you.

For God helps him who helps himself.

The Lady, the Suitor and the Ghost

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

ETHERIA MAGRUDER was a simple psychic soul
Who flirted most unwisely with a handsome young control—
A frivolous control he was, with a very little to him,
Yet, strangely, Miss Etheria could never quite see through him.

Each evening when the graveyards yawned and said, "It's getting late!"
He wrote her psychic messages upon a little slate,
A spell he cast about the girl, which made her fond and sad,
Although his spelling as a rule, was very, very bad.

He used to knock, this spirit did, to make his presence known.
He had a secret cipher code peculiarly his own.
But though he often knocked quite hard, to prove his tender ardor,
John Jones, Etheria's other lover, knocked quite a good bit harder.

One night, when Jones was calling on our gentle heroine,
The spirit rapped outside the door and asked to be let in,
And when John Jones responded "NIX," his spirit hair he tore,
And with no ghost of an excuse he filliered through the door.

Once in, he wrote upon a slate, "Come, quit this fellow Jones.
And you and me will wander far to happy spirit zones."
(A spirit you must bear in mind is clothed in such weird glamour
Of mystery he does not need to bother much with grammar.)

John Jones arose, as well he might, for also rose his chair—
The spirit levitated it some six feet in the air—
But when he settled down once more he gave one savage gasp
And seized the rude intruder with a firm, prehensile grasp.

"Look here!" he said, while flattening his victim on the wall,
"You may be very classy, but I can't see you at all."
And turning to Etheria, who looked a frightened wreck,
He said, "I'll break your spirit, Kid, or else I'll break his neck!"

The spirit struggled frantically, but he was roughly prodded,
And it he differed to fight, when one is absent bodied
But when the lady called out: "Stop, John Jones, I love you most,"
John Jones was moved to pity, and, forthwith, gave up the ghost!

Alas, for Mr. Jones! the ghost when once he'd got away,
Eloped with Miss Etheria the following Saturday!

CHAPTER XVIII.

A Long Little Finger

COQUENIL kept his appointment that night at the Three Wise Men and found Papa Tignol waiting for him, his face troubled even to the tip of his luminous purple nose. In vain the old man tried to show interest in a neighboring game of dominoes. The detective saw at a glance that his faithful friend had heard the bad news and was mourning over it.

"Ah, Paul!" cried Tignol. "This is a pretty thing they tell me. Nom d'un chien, what a pack of fools they are!"

"Not so fast," cautioned Coquenil with a quiet smile. "It's all right, Papa Tignol, it's all for the best."

"All for the best!" stared the other. "But if you're off the force—"

"Well a little and you'll understand," said the detective in a low tone, then as the tavern door opened: "Here is Monsieur Lecoq," telephoned him. Good evening, Lucien," and he shook hands cordially with the commissary, whose face wore a serious inquiring look. "Will you have anything or will we—move on?" and under his breath, he added: "Say you don't want anything."

"I don't want anything," obeyed Poujeot with a puzzled glance.

"Then come, it's a quarter past ten," and tossing some money to the waiter, Coquenil led the way out.

There in the front of the tavern was a taxi-auto, the chauffeur bundled up to the ears in hooty gray furs, despite the mild night. There was a leather bag beside him.

"Is this your man?" asked Pongeot.

"Yes," said M. Paul; "but, listen, if you don't mind, I'll leave the front window so that we can feel the air." Then, when the commissary and Tignol were seated, "Drive to Passy," he directed the chauffeur.

"Not anything?"

A THRILLING MYSTERY
By CHARLES E. WALK

Begin This Remarkable Story of Adventure To-day; Don't Miss It.

Copyright, 1909, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

CHAPTER I.
An Interrupted Wedding

"FOR gracious sake, girls, silence!" A countenance reflecting an aggrieved sense of its owner's importance, together with an expression of stern reprobation for the distracting confusion in the vestry room, appeared for a moment framed in the doorway.

"My! I never in all my born days heard such a racket!" went on the speaker, a middle-aged, stout lady, as the chatter and laughter abruptly subsided. "Miss Dupont will begin the wedding march in another minute, and if you don't keep quiet in here Miss Fay and the maids with never be able to hear the signal—unless it should be fired at you from a cannon."

The perturbed face vanished, and instantly the fresh young girlish voices broke forth once more with renewed vigor.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" the poet pauses in the midst of his rhapsody to inquire. Nothing, unless perchance it is a starlit June night. June! that happy season of drooping, languorous roses and of brides, when the very air whispers of love and Nature's pulse throbs with its ecstasy, when the perfume of love-madness enters like wine into the veins of Youth, whose harshest word sings in unison with the world's caress. Ah, but 'tis grand and glorious to be young in June!

And to-night it is June, the very heyday of the season's splendor of lace-in spring magic, and, as is proper in June nuptial lights gleamed from the stained glass windows of St. Stephen the Martyr's. Yet their is a soulless tone to their radiance; the lights do not ,ash and surrounded with the aggressive gloss and slumber that one might reasonably expect from so joyous an occasion. Rather they shine through the high Gothic windows with precisely the proper degree of subdued brilliancy becoming in an edifice so dignified and imposing.

For be it known, even to those who are not any other sort of lights gleamed from St. Stephen the Martyr's, even as they do from an assemblage of the ultra fashionable, and a corresponding gathering of the beau monde and curious, also, however, remain for in the background and at the rear, where they are merely an indistinguishable blur.

A Wedding in Society

All the wealth and fashion of Williams burg are gathered here to-night—a Tuesday, it may be well to remember, as besides these are many notables from afar from New York, and Washington, and Philadelphia, and even London. And then in the midst of the brilliant throng descending from shining equipages before the church's front, one might be favored with a glimpse of ribbon or the pearl of opera cloak adorning the bosom of some eminent British duke, designating him of the diplomatic corps, which inhabits the nation's capital. For to-night Lawrence Gibbs will marry Dorothy Day.

But the most of us are not in the habit of lifting over the pages of our own parties in Almanach de Gotha, and for the benefit of such it might per be amiss to record that the laconic statement was no other than the Lecomte Gibbs whose name is inseparably from the prosperity of the steel industry. As for Miss Day, she was preeminently the brightest gem in Williamsburg social diadem; and, quite appropriately, the ceremony was to be celebrated with a splendor never before known in the community.

At such a time, however, the first interest remains with the bride. So back we hark to the vestry room, where in spite of all the gay, animated group remains tranquil and serene.

A little color added to the pale cheeks might, perhaps, be desirable—but why not ourselves up as carping critics to cavil at a bride's immaculateness? Nevertheless, one may gaze upon a form and countenance so beautiful, so gracious, so altogether charming and lovely, should not one humbly give these evening and thanks?

She smiles, and lo! it is the pure white light of her heart shining for a space in the windows of her eyes. They are fine eyes, a wonderful blue, steady in the expression of their sincerity, unwavering shadows in their depths. Yet for all the mature reflection, a dash of color in the pale cheeks would have added not a little.

At 8 o'clock precisely the first notes of the wedding march were heard, pealing forth grained nave and rumbled in a thunderous diapason through the adjacent vestry room.

Miss Day, with an unstudied deliberation and grace of movement, beat her blonde head and gave a little sigh as the inevitable final look and pat to her train, when she, pretty, irresolvent, self-possessed girl adjusting the bridal veil was effected.

New Treatment for Falling Hair.

The air is full of flying dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle in the hair and scalp. The natural oil on your head holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff and scalp troubles. The pores in your scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then your hair begins to fall out. It is all such a simple matter that a child can see that cleanliness is the one and only thing needed. You don't need tonics, renewers, invigorators or hair growers. You need Bird's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation. It is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerine and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp. Ask your doctor about it. Price 50 cents.

It had required but a second for him to elbow his way through the accompanying bodyguard of bridesmaids, to thrust some article into the b ride's hand.

sudden thrust rudely aside, and a strange guests! Now that was more satisfactory than any other. The notes from the great pipe organ roll sonorously on, the minutes pass, and neither bride nor groom appears. The whispered delay grows to a murmur, the murmur grows into loud, and sundries be some certain, But soon it and the vested rector, side by counsel, appeared in the vestry room. Incidents such as had to do with "an sudden indisposition of the bride," the guests rose and went quietly away.

The Bride Vanishes

Miss Day had scarcely had time to be startled before the man had gone. Then came a

The groom was gone! Then the maid, and perhaps Miss ary's closest friend, and a young man of name of Lesley Coe, who was to have on the best man.

The newcomer paused on the threshold the rector's study and announced his hority in the following terms. They presented a huddled appearance as they stared at him in tragic silence; but the stranger seemed quite unconscious of the effect he produced, looking any special interest until h ussed upon Mr. Gibbs. Then the man ted, and said, specifically, "Hint—from ollow-headquarters."

It was Foster Cole, who seemed less ously bored by the whole affair who ented him.

Mr. Flint, however, had recognized the man's insignia, and when he again spoke Mr. Gibbs the official dignity of his little company.

"I am sorry you didn't send for us at first, Mr. Gibbs," he said, with a glance at Foster Cole, "as I could have sent Cole to alert a startled glance into the corridor behind him, as if he expected Cole to uphold the whole police department of Scotland there. But the corridor was merely dark.

"More than one bomb have been sent through the mail by Mr. Flint, with a prime importance in a case of this kind—" "Bomb!" gasped Mr. Gibbs in a weak voice.

"Anyway, why should we consider it a case for the police at all?"

Flint turned to him a dull look. The detective was evidently contemplating man's duty as a lodger, and with a smooth deference that was lost on Mr. Gibbs he possessed a certain shrewd look about the eyes, and he now spoke at his ease in mild surroundings with very likely, he was not at all familiar.

The Police Investigate

"I don't know that it is," Flint quietly returned to Foster Cole's question. "I daresay there will be no need for my services after you have had time calmly to consider the matter. And what do you know about it, sir?"

Mr. Cole shrugged his shoulders and turned to Miss Gerraldo. This directed, Mr. Flint's eyes also rested upon the young lady, who, it appeared, carried at the fourth finger of her left hand the solitaire of the episode of the intruder than any one else. It was the concentrated attention.

Miss Gerraldo spoke:

"I had received the signal when the girls in the vestry room subsided into a chattering, laughing group throughout the open door. Then one turning to regard for silence and order. There was a tall man in the aisle, the bridegroom apparently from the attendant crowd of Miss Day's friends. He was of the height of Mr. Flint's own, and there was a moment's confusion that I felt a heavy hand on my shoulder."

The speaker was evidently gifted with an unusual memory for, as she continued, she spoke with with increasing animation. The girls, she said, the color gone in her cheeks, she portrayed the scene vividly, at times even dramatically.

"I was at once rudely thrust aside," she recited, "and next instant passed to see a tall man in clerical dress, with a face as smooth as more than a half dozen words or so, had been uttered, he had gone into her hand and hurried away."

"A good description," exclaimed Flint.

The company were now watching him with a deep interest, and Flint, as he received an interpretation of this circumstance, looked up from the letter. It was manifest that it had afforded a more than ordinary degree of interest, and in one feature of the episode.

Miss Gerraldo's expression, earnestly, it looked more like a bracelet than anything else. It was of gold, and in the light was rough—without a clasp as if it once had been a circle. Evidently one of the girls had taken it from something it had found. It was of dull or Roman gold, perhaps an inch and a half wide, and was held an inscription. I was, of course, unable to read it, but the words were not merely ornaments.

If Mr. Flint made anything of the bracelet he kept the result to himself, much to the disappointment of the others.

"Can you describe the man's appearance?" he next wanted to know.

"He was a rotch, uncouth person, clad in a shabby, dark, loudness suit, still, there was something in the way he carried himself that made one think of a soldier. He wore a soft black hat pulled down far over his eyes, and I could get no clear impression of his features."

Dr. Flint interrupted:

"You say that you are sure—quite sure—your description is not exaggerated, Miss Gerraldo? You are positive?"

There was no doubting the young lady's assurance on this point.

"Oh, no—no—no!" she cried, with a shudder. "His manner was that of a ruffian, and for a moment the girls were more frightened than I was. I was in the ply paralyzed with fright until Dolly had been dragged away from the window, when she turned again to Flint.

"One detail of the man's appearance I very vivid in my mind," said she. "He had a scar—a long scar—that ran from his left, but not quite to his mouth. It was red and looked as though it had been recently

SOCIETY AT THE FOOTBALL GAME

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

All society interest to-day naturally centres in the Harvard-Yale game and the lunch and belles of not only the smart set but all other sets will be there to cheer.

Any number of smart luncheons have been planned for the younger girls who with their escorts will later be chaperoned by their mothers to the game. Supper and theatre parties will bring the day to its happy climax, after which many will motor out to their country residence for week-end visits, others going to rest and refresh themselves over Sunday.

That the middle matrons of the Boston smart set do not devote all of their leisure to the purely social, nor yet to society's charities, is shown by the patronage they are giving to the series of ten conversations on "Italian Art from the Earliest Christian Period to the Time of Raphael."

The second of the series was given this morning in the large lecture hall of the Boston Public Library. The course is being given by Miss Anna Seaton-Schmidt under the auspices of the Italian Art Class, of which L. Elizabeth Kelly is director and secretary and Arthur Adams, treasurer.

The dates for the remaining lectures are November 27, December 4, January 12, 19 and 26, and March 5, 12 and 19. Some of the patrons and patronesses are Francis J. Curtis, Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Mrs. Alfred Bundrett, Mrs. George L. De Blois and Mrs. Tucker Daland.

December 7 is a date to which the fashionables here are looking forward with pleasure, for on that day Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch is to give a fashionable tea and reception at her home on Commonwealth avenue in honor of her new daughter-in-law, Mrs. Conover Fitch, whose marriage took place in Long Island this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Fitch are soon to return to this country after a wedding trip in Europe.

Mrs. Fitch was Miss Gladys Rogert and she is already popular here, having spent several days this Summer at Manchester where the Fitch country house is situated and where she met a large number of the Boston colony.

She also attended a dinner-dance at the Essex County Club and was pronounced both charming and gracious. Society now has her there. Mrs. Conover Fitch, the Mrs. Ezra Fitch, Jr., is to make her new home in Brookline and will be prominent in the social life here this season.

Mrs. George Edward Cabot, who gave a fashionable reception this week for her daughter, Miss Lucy Seward Cabot, has arranged to give a similar affair in her honor again on Tuesday, November 23, at her home on Marlboro street.

Mrs. Herbert H. Rickers has invitations out for a reception and tea which she has arranged to give for her daughter, Miss Grace Redway, at the Brunswick on Saturday, November 27. Miss Redway is very popular in the circles of the younger set and will have a dozen of her most intimate friends as patrons at her coming tea party.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greenough of Roxbo, who were married on Tuesday by Bishop David H. Greer at Grace Church in New York, are among the recent arrivals at Hot Springs, Virginia. They have planned to spend part of their honeymoon at the Homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams of this city has just arrived in Hot Springs, Virginia, where they will spend the remainder of the Autumn at the Homestead.

December 14 is the date chosen by Miss Florence Warner of New York, for her marriage to Taber Ware of this city. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry S. Warner.

Mrs. S. Parker Breyer is planning a dinner for the members of the younger set at her home on Marlboro street.

BELL'S SEASONING
40 Years the original Favorite for delicately flavoring Dressings for Turkey, Chicken, Game, Fish, Lamb, Croquettes, Oyster Patties, Escalops, etc.

A NICE TURKEY DRESSING. Toast 7 or 8 slices of white bread. Place in a deep dish, adding butter the size of an egg. Cover with hot water to melt butter and make bread right consistency. Add 1 even tablespoon of Bell's Seasoning, and 1 even teaspoon salt. When well mixed, stir in 1 or 2 raw eggs. For goose or duck add 1 raw onion chopped fine. (From Bell's Receipts. Ask your Grocer.)

Remember, a 10c. can of Bell's Seasoning is sufficient to flavor the dressing for 100 lbs. of meat or poultry, and the 25c. can 300 lbs.

For Delicious Sausages, Flavor with Bell's Sausage Seasoning. 25c. and 50c. Cans; 6, 12 and 25 lb. Boxes; 50, 75 and 100 lb. Drums.

Grape fruit made six half cocktails for six cocktails. Three tomatoes cut in halves made six cocktails. One pint of cranberries made the six individual jellies. Two pints dates and walnuts made just the actual cost of the portion taken from a pound of each, purchased but not used at this dinner. One banana was used for the fritters, and bread, butter, milk, salt, pepper, flour, lard and mayonnaise, estimated at cost of portion used. Five cents worth of bread made the croutons and dressing. All thoughtfully planned and cheerfully worked by the housemother.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

OIL DECISION HITS STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The Government's victory in the suit of the Association of the Standard Oil Company caused heavy selling of stocks in the Curb and Wall Street today. It developed just before the close that the selling was a signal by professionals. The insiders supported the market and it closed strong.

For a few minutes, however, stocks were very excited and weak. Reading, which sold in the early trading at 171¼, declined five points. Consolidated Gas, which was selling at 149¾, sold at 146. American Smelting broke from 105¾ to 102⅝, and Utah Copper from 70 to 68. Trading in this broke nearly three points. The recovery came in the last few minutes of trading.

Great excitement prevailed in the early trading in Utah Copper. This property is necessary to the success to the big copper merger and it has been discovered that the Guggenheims do not own control. A stock market battle is in progress for enough stock to deliver the property.

ACTIVITY IN LOCAL LIST FOR INVESTORS

STATE STREET, Nov. 20.—Closing—There was a good, active market for copper shares this forenoon. Boston consolidated was the feature with a 1¾ point advance to 19⅜. The tape would indicate that this property was to be connected with the copper merger in some way. The report has been persistent that it was to be absorbed by the Utah Copper Company, but terms could not be arranged.

A few of the first that Utah Copper has had a very heavy decline from the top of 66 this forenoon—It is possible that the deal may yet be perfected and Boston Consolidated may be taken over on terms equitable with Utah Copper's present market price.

Nova Consolidated was another strong spot, advancing 1¾ points to 69—It is very apparent that the Cole-Ryan people are now figuring on the Bingham copper properties. An advance to 85 for Wyoming stock attracted attention. Lake Copper rose to 45, while North Butte fell a point to 92⅞. There was less animation in Amalgamated, although the price was firm when sold 93 and the American Telephone differed to 148.

Price suffered the last half hour on the announcement that the Government had sent its suit in the St. Louis district, declaring the New Jersey corporation Illegal. Amalgamated went off to 85⅞ and North Butte broke to 65. Other declines were unimportant.

Curb trading was light and price changes moderate. Chino was active up to 94¾ and Goldfield Consolidated differed to 8. Nevada was unchanged. Western Development was more or less active. Opening at 7, it fell back to 13 cents.

STATE ST. NEWS

Copper stocks are about due for a reaction.

Within the last three weeks the fourteen companies mentioned in connection with the copper consolidation have obtained the benefits to be derived through consolidation to the extent of $90,380,000.

It is urged that Amalgamated is too high in comparison with Utah, Nevada Consolidated and other stocks of that class.

More gold was engaged for export, but nobody worried about that because there is more money than New York knows what to do with. When the British budget is rejected by the Lords, and the people of England endorse a loan to carry the government over into January, the end of the copper combine will be near. Time already seen in New York, and this will hasten the return of easy money conditions here. Low money rates are now certain, and it requires no great faith to believe that 6 per cent. will not be secured again this year.

Some conflicting rumors have been in circulation the last few days regarding the affairs of American Smelting in the new copper combine. The statements were respectively that the explanation was to be credited with the explanation that the Amalgamated Copper nor American Smelting will go into the new combination under their own name. The purpose is to have the new corporation pure and simple, unassociated and free from both Smelting all of the properties that deal directly with copper mining.

For instance, the American Smelting Company built a smelter at Garfield to handle ores of the Utah Copper Company. The same is going into the combine by the Garfield Smelter will have to go. This will be turned over at a price. The Utah Copper properties are expected to be taken over, undoubtedly sell to the new combine also undoubtedly that deal with copper all of its refineries that deal with copper mines with other metals. This will leave Smelters as the great concerns for gold, silver, lead, zinc and other metals in its refining work, and which are great bushess in lead, zinc and other metals in its refining account. Whether the American Smelting will turn over the stock it receives to its shareholders or to the treasury as an investment, it remains to be seen. The International Smelting Company is to be the official smelter for the combine, because it has the smelter for the combine, because it has the smelter for the combine anyhow. Some of the copper properties of the United States Smelting Company go into the combination. Guggenheim interests are said to be the vendors of the Nevada Consolidated.

Some doubt has been expressed regarding the purchase of Utah Copper by the combination. Nobody need worry on this score, because the new company has to have Utah, just as it has to have the copper-smelting properties of the Smelting and Refining Company. The Guggenheims do not control Utah, but the Independent interest is in the hands of an independent copper producer. It will probably turn it over to the trust at a reasonable price in order to help his independent copper interest. Utah promises to be the bone of contention in the stock market for the next few days. It is worth a great deal in the merger, but it is not worth as much as Guggenheim's. It is the one property whose stockholders need not care what happens to the negotiations.

These negotiations, however, are progressing with unexpected smoothness. The price of lake copper advanced to 14 cents and Amalgamated to 13. Leading producers began making excited inquiries for supplies. The chairman of the Steel Trust reported for the last two weeks of November will break all records. Buyers are sought who have seldom been known to be in their market. It is generally believed that the big combination will leave Utah Consolidated in a unique position. It is undoubtedly now partly owned by a number of Copper banqueta at the Waldorf, patterned very much after the Steel banquets, at which the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Steel Trust figures as the honored guest, and from which newspaper reporters are rigorously excluded.

GIRL DANCER TOO MUCH FOR THE HOOK

The gentlemen amateurs had to be content to run a bad second to a female dancer in the amateur bill at the Columbia last evening and this artiste came pretty near being the whole show. Miss Rowena Sho was so good that she took a stage name, and if she has to live up to it she can never wear it unless she changes her act, and that would be a pity, for she is the one property whose stockholders need not care what happens to the negotiations.

These negotiations, however, are progressing with unexpected smoothness. The price of lake copper advanced to 14 cents and Amalgamated to 13. Leading producers began making excited inquiries for supplies. The chairman of the Steel Trust reported for the last two weeks of November will break all records. Buyers are sought who have seldom been known to be in their market. It is generally believed that the big combination will leave Utah Consolidated in a unique position. It is undoubtedly now partly owned by a number of Copper banquets at the Waldorf, patterned very much after the Steel banquets, at which the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Steel Trust figures as the honored guest, and from which newspaper reporters are rigorously excluded.

ELECTRICAL SHOW FOR ANNUAL EVENT

The Electrical Show has "caught on" and crowds are daily visiting this latest of Boston Expositions. Owing to the great interest of the undertaking, it has been decided to make it an annual event and already many of the exhibitors have expressed their intention of exhibiting next year.

This afternoon the Harvard-Yale football game is reproduced with the Jordan Hall and on this particular occasion a small charge is made for reserved seats in the balcony.

$150,000 FOR ART MUSEUM

The trustees of the Museum of Fine Arts announce the gift of $150,000 from R. D. Evans, recently received through his widow. Twenty-five thousand dollars of this amount completes Mr. Evans's large subscription to the building fund.

Mr. Evans was a genuine lover of art, particularly of paintings. The Van Dyck which he gave the museum has attracted much attention, as has also the splendid double portrait of Rubens, from his collection which has been lent to the museum.

Of the present gift, $125,000 has been placed in the new maintenance fund for which the appeal was recently issued. The total of the subscriptions to the fund received to date to yesterday noon is $135,635.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

Somebody Will Be Punished for the Sugar Trust Rascality

And If the Prosecution Is Really Courageous It Will Not Be Only the Miserable Little Hirelings

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

The exposure of the Sugar Trust rascality has been so complete that SOMEBODY must be punished.

Public sentiment, a very energetic force, when once aroused will demand a grand march of offenders to the nearest federal penitentiary.

But solely upon the character of the prosecution will depend the make-up of that procession.

In most cases of this kind it has been the cheap little hirelings who have gone to jail.

We do not dispute that they ought to go to jail. But we do contend that as long as only the little thievish employes of big thieves are made to suffer when the big thieves are caught, big thievery will continue to menace public decency in this country.

The proprietors of the Sugar Trust, who put into their own pockets the vast bulk of the millions stolen from the government, tossed a few dollars now and then to the men who stole for them.

For taking these few crooked dollars the little fellows will now be put into prison.

But how about the owners of the trust, who inspired the robbing, the bribery, the perjury and the general scoundrelism that have marked the whole criminal history of this blackguard institution?

On the same evidence that will convict their pilfering employes they can be convicted.

If they are convicted, that kind of crookedness will be powerfully discouraged for a long time to come.

But all the resources and ingenuity that have enabled the Sugar Trust to keep out of the courts for many years will be employed to keep its owners out of jail.

It will require a brave and honest prosecutor to get the real offenders in this business.

If they are punished their prosecutor will have the satisfaction of knowing that he is really a great man, and that he has the gratitude and recognition of the entire country.

If they escape, though every little thief who stole for them should go to the penitentiary, the present proceedings will hardly be worth the time they occupy.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

The Citizenship of Poet Gilder

Everybody knows that Richard Watson Gilder, whose death was recorded yesterday, was a poet of inspiration and a faithful man of letters, true to the exacting ideals of that profession.

Many will remember his intimate association with J. G. Holland and his long service with the old Scribner's Monthly and its successor, the Century Magazine.

But few would remember, without a reminder, a remarkable passage in the history of New York City in which Mr. Gilder made a golden record worthy of a civic crown.

Fourteen years ago New York was startled one morning by the newspaper disclosure of the fact that the Corporation of Trinity Church was the owner of some of the vilest tenement houses in the city.

Out of that great scandal, now grown all too familiar and commonplace, arose a movement for the appointment by Governor Flower of an investigating committee from the Legislature to look into the housing conditions of the poor in that city.

The Trinity disclosure, the agitation at Albany leading to the creation of the legislative committee and the nominating of that committee at the Governor's request, were all the work of a man who has for many years given his life to work of this kind for the Hearst newspapers.

This man suggested to the Governor that Richard Watson Gilder should be the chairman of the investigating committee.

He was accordingly appointed to that office.

Mr. Gilder threw himself into the task with his characteristic conscientiousness and devotion.

His faithfulness defied all rivalry. More than a year of his life was given to the work of this committee—a work out of which has grown the New York Tenement House Law, which has furnished a model of that kind of legislation for the whole country.

In his determination to know all the facts at first hand, Mr. Gilder visited day by day in person hundreds of the worst tenements in the city.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE MAN DOWN AND OUT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

For some considerable time I have been studying the subject of the man who is down and out in the city of Boston, and I would like, if possible to hear your views on the subject, which, to my mind, is one of vital importance, not only to Christianity at large, but to the city of Boston, and in fact to this large continent. I am prepared to acknowledge that there are at present some institutions and organizations who are rendering with all possible success, to cope with this I might say mighty problem, but I think when they have done their best there still remains a tremendous amount of work to do.

May those at the head of the "315" movement try to do something along these lines, but in the meantime let the Christian people wake up to the fact that there is at the present time a momentous problem awaiting their solution.

BEWARE, IMPOSTERS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

At this time of year when efforts are being put forth for the purpose of collecting money for Christmas and Thanksgiving, the public should beware of giving to irresponsible people.

Friends of the Salvation Army are writing and saying that they have given to men and women who have solicited help at their homes, or places of business, presenting themselves as representatives for the Salvation Army, but it has been discovered that they are imposters, and have no authority to collect for the Army. The public are asked to refuse anyone collecting in the name of the Army except they wear the uniform of that organization, a cap with a red band or a bonnet with a red band, and can present proper credentials in the form of a leather bound authorization, signed by Colonel Adam Gifford, Provincial Officer for New England.

Wealth from Our Farms

By CHARLES M. COX

Of the Agricultural Committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce

The Boston Chamber of Commerce has appointed a Committee on Agriculture for the purpose of advancing the interests of farming in New England. The committee does not expect the Boston Chamber of Commerce itself nor its representatives to engage in tilling the soil, but it is expected that through agitation and the dissemination of useful information as to the advantage which New England offers to the farmers and the orchardist, much can be accomplished to the end that our young men may turn to farming as a profitable occupation.

New England is situated very much the same as Old England, in that it is compelled to buy a very large percentage of its food products, both for animals and man. It is estimated that at least four hundred cars of grain and feed enter New England from the West every day. The strain, therefore, on the New England farmer, in view of the very high prices prevailing during the last two years, is great, and a business organization in which the grain men are so prominent, as is the case in the Boston Chamber of Commerce, may well lend a hand to assist the farming community to find a way out of its present real difficulty.

Be it known, that milk is the great staple of production in New England, much as cotton is the prevailing crop in the South. We must have milk—and dairying will probably always dominate—but should we pin our faith so closely to this one article of production?

Some sections, such as the tobacco raising valley of the Connecticut, the cranberry producing bogs of Cape Cod, and the potato regions of Maine, have come to realize that in specializing there is more money to be made than in the common, everyday manner of farming.

It is the definite desire of the Agricultural Committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to call the attention of the New England farmers to the fact that by turning their attention to apple raising there is an open door before them fully as favorable as that which the cranberry producers have entered on the Cape.

It is said that an income of $200 an acre is obtained from cranberries. On the other hand, it is proven by the experience of such men as Charles E. Hardy, of Hollis, N. H., that our old apple orchards, which have been allowed more or less to go neglected, will actually yield a greater income than $200 per acre if intelligently handled. Mr. Hardy assumed charge of a farm less than four years ago. By spraying, cultivating and fertilizing he has brought the efficiency of his fifteen acres of orchard, during that time, to a point where this year he has actually received $8,500 income therefrom.

One great difference between farmers and business men is that the latter definitely plan to make money. They look ahead and see that by diligence and application they can become more or less rich. In the case of some New England farmers, however, it seems as though they are not sufficiently enthusiastic.

With the case, however, of a man who starts West to engage in most any pursuit he sees visions of wealth and is fired with a distinct enthusiasm both before he starts and afterward, and this very enthusiasm carries him well along the road toward realization of his dream.

No class of people are more industrious and worthy citizens than are the New England farmers.

It seems to the writer that what they need more than anything else is to realize that there are actual possibilities right on the farms on which they live for a development leading to wealth. This statement is borne out by the fact that in a good many instances farmers in New England have succeeded in accumulating modest fortunes. For example, about twenty years ago there came to this country a young Irishman who went into farming on the outskirts of Lexington, and has been there ever since and is to-day worth over $100,000, which he has made by strict attention to market gardening.

Hon. Hiram K. N. H., a town where opportunities are at least no greater than any other rural community in New England, Mr. C. L. Harvard is conducting a combination poultry and fruit farm on an immense scale, developed during a period of years, so that he has now over 10,000 hens. His principal income, however, is said to be from the sale of apples, which he raises on a very large scale and for which he has a justly celebrated reputation.

A farmer near Burlington, Vermont, is receiving a gross income this year from the sale of apples to the amount of $17,000. Mr. J. H. Hale of South Glastonbury, Ct., has achieved a phenomenal success and is a rich man as a result of his development of the culture of apples and peaches on a large scale.

Many more instances might be cited. It is plain, however, that by intelligent application, coupled with an enthusiasm for the business, a fortune may be reaped right here in New England in pomology.

The Committee on Agriculture of the Chamber of Commerce feels that it is quite in order to cultivate an optimistic feeling so that we may have the "Eastern spirit" of desire and activity in specialized farming, rivalling that of our brothers in the great West.
